A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE FOR THE EARLY CLOSING OF SHOPS AND FOR LIMITING THE HOURS OF WORK OF SHOP ASSISTANTS."

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

This Bill is intended to repeal the Shop Assistants (Hours) Ordinance, 1911, while carrying into effect its principal provisions. It has been found difficult to enforce the Ordinance owing to the difficulty of distinguishing between employers and shop assistants in the case of many small shops, there being no obligation as to closing, and owing to a similar difficulty in some cases in ascertaining whether Friday or Saturday has been elected for the half-holiday. A Bill to remove some difficulties was introduced into the Court of Policy by the Attorney General who explained that like the original it was not a government measure and that only a general closing Bill would be really effectual. At the request of the unofficals the Bill was left in Committee and the present Bill drafted.

The hours of shop assistants are left as in the Ordinance of 1911, but shops must be closed at the termination of those periods. Saturday is the normal half-holiday but an alternative day may be adopted at the option of the employer. (Clause 5) The alternative day must be a day fixed by a ballot of the shopkeepers of Georgetown and New Amsterdam respectively and a fresh ballot may be taken after a year. The employer must register the fact of election in a book kept by the Inspector General otherwise the half-holiday will be taken to be Saturday. He may alter the day but not oftener than once in three months.

The Bill follows the principles of the Shops Act, 1911, of the Imperial Parliament. The definition of "shop assistant" has been adopted from that Act.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE FOR THE EARLY CLOSING OF SHOPS AND FOR LIMITING THE HOURS OF WORK OF SHOP ASSISTANTS."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Shops Ordinance, 1913. Short Title.

In this Ordinance, the expression "shop" includes any premises in Georgetown or New Amsterdam not specially exempted hereunder, where any retail trade or business is carried on, and includes any store, shop, room, shed, stall, or yard in Georgetown or New Amsterdam liable to an annual general trade licence and not specially exempted hereunder. Interpretation.

(2.) On payment of a registration fee of one dollar an occupier shall be registered by the Inspector General of Police in one or more register books kept by him or by his authority for that purpose, as having exercised such option and such register book or a certified extract therefrom shall be conclusive evidence of the exercise of such option. Any occupier so registered may at any time request the Inspector General in writing to cancel the registration and the same shall thereupon be cancelled and the obligation of a Saturday half holiday shall thereupon re-apply to the said shop: Provided that it shall not be lawful for the occupier of the shop to change the day oftener than once in any period of three months and that unless the option is exercised in the manner aforesaid the half-holiday shall be deemed to be Saturday.

(3.) On half holidays no shop assistant shall be employed after the hour of 1 p.m. and after that hour no shop shall be kept open.

(4.) A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO INTRODUCE THE ENGLISH STATUTE AND COMMON LAW RELATING TO THE SALE OF GOODS."

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

This Bill is introduced in view of the expressions of public opinion elicited during the sittings of the Common Law Commission that the Roman-Dutch law should be replaced in commercial matters in this colony by English law. The present Bill adopts and re-enacts the Sale of Goods Act, 1893, of the Imperial Parliament with the few variations rendered necessary by local circumstances. Most of the colonies in which English law prevails have already taken this step and Ceylon, which still retains the Roman-Dutch law, did so in 1896. By clause 60 (2) the Roman-Dutch Law will be abolished as far as the Sale of Goods is concerned, and the rules of the English law will apply save in so far as inconsistent with this codifying statute. The English Act reproduced very closely the existing law as laid down by judicial decision, effecting very few conscious changes. The present Bill on the other hand will completely alter the law of the colony and the full effect could only be set out in a somewhat lengthy legal treatise. The object aimed at is to replace the present uncertainties of our common law on the Sale of Goods by a definite code on the well-known principle referred to by Chalmers that in mercantile matters the certainty of the rule is often of more importance than its substance.

Under the Roman-Dutch law : sale means an agreement to sell : there is no vendor's lien, the unpaid vendor being protected by the principle that property does not pass until delivery, the vendor retaining the ownership until payment ; there is no stoppage in transitu ; the doctrine of caveat emptor does not exist ; the vendor is not bound to pass the ownership of the thing sold but only to give undisturbed possession ; the risk passes to the purchaser independent of delivery or payment even where the property has not passed ; the price must be fixed by the parties or be left to a definite third party ; sales in market overt are subject to the owner's right of reclaiming on repaying the purchase money, the owner however acquiring no special right as in English law on prosecuting a thief to conviction. On these and on many other points the Roman-Dutch Common law, where it can be definitely ascertained, differs from the present English law as codified by the Sale of Goods Act, 1893. In many cases however it is difficult to ascertain it. The appeal case of Synaula Bee v Craigen (Full Court, 1911) among others has revealed the difficulties caused by its inadequacy for modern commercial requirements.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO INTRODUCE
"THE ENGLISH STATUTE AND COMMON LAW RELAT-"ING TO THE SALE OF GOODS."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

(3.) A person is deemed to be insolvent within the meaning of this Ordinance who either has ceased to pay his debts in the ordinary course of business, or cannot pay his debts as they become due, whether he has committed an act of insolvency or not.

(4.) Goods are in " a deliverable state " within the meaning of this Ordinance when they are in such a state that the buyer would under the contract be bound to take delivery of them.

FORMATION OF THE CONTRACT.

Contract of Sale.

Sale and
to sell.

(2.) A contract of sale may be absolute or conditional.

(3.) Where under a contract of sale the property in the goods is transferred from the seller to the buyer the contract is called a sale; but where the transfer of the property in the goods is to take place at a future time or subject to some condition thereafter to be fulfilled the contract is called an agreement to sell.

(4.) An agreement to sell becomes a sale when the time elapses or the conditions are fulfilled subject to which the property in the goods is to be transferred.

4. Capacity to buy and sell is regulated by the general law concerning capacity to contract, and to transfer and acquire property. Capacity to buy and sell.

Provided that where necessaries are sold and delivered to an infant, or minor, or to a person who by reason of mental incapacity or drunkenness is incompetent to contract, he must pay a reasonable price therefor.

Necessaries in this section mean goods suitable to the condition in life of such infant or minor or other person, and to his actual requirements at the time of the sale and delivery.

Formalities of the Contract

5. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and of any ordinance in that behalf, a contract of sale may be made in writing (either with or without seal), or by word of mouth, or partly in writing and partly by word of mouth, or may be implied from the conduct of the parties. Contract of sale, how made.

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the law relating to corporations.

6.—(1.) A contract for the sale of any goods of the value of forty-eight dollars or upwards shall not be enforceable by action unless the buyer shall accept part of the goods so sold, and actually receive the same, or give something in earnest to bind the contract, or in part payment, or unless some note or memorandum in writing of the contract be made and signed by the party to be charged or his agent in that behalf. Contract of sale for forty eight dollars and upwards.

(2.) The provisions of this section apply to every such contract, notwithstanding that the goods may be intended to be delivered at some future time, or may not at the time of such contract be actually made, procured, or provided, or fit or ready for delivery, or some act may be requisite for the making or completing thereof, or rendering the same fit for delivery.

(3.) There is an acceptance of goods within the meaning of this section when the buyer does any act in relation to the goods which recognises a pre-existing contract of sale whether there be an acceptance in performance of the contract or not.

Subject Matter of Contract.

7.—(1.) The goods which form the subject of a contract of sale may be either existing goods, owned or possessed by the seller, of Existing or future goods.

goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract of sale, in this Ordinance called "future goods."

(2.) There may be a contract for the sale of goods, the acquisition of which by the seller depends upon a contingency which may or may not happen.

(3.) Where by a contract of sale the seller purports to effect a present sale of future goods the contract operates as an agreement to sell the goods.

Goods which have perished.

8. Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods, and the goods without the knowledge of the seller have perished at the time when the contract is made, the contract is void.

Goods perishing before sale but after agreement to sell.

9. Where there is an agreement to sell specific goods, and subsequently the goods, without any fault on the part of the seller or buyer, perish before the risk passes to the buyer, the agreement is thereby avoided.

The Price.

Ascertainment of price.

10.—(1.) The price in a contract of sale may be fixed by the contract, or may be left to be fixed in manner thereby agreed, or may be determined by the course of dealing between the parties.

(2.) Where the price is not determined in accordance with the foregoing provisions the buyer must pay a reasonable price. What is a reasonable price is a question of fact dependent on the circumstances of each particular case.

Agreement to sell at valuation.

11.—(1.) Where there is an agreement to sell goods on the terms that the price is to be fixed by the valuation of a third party, and such third party cannot or does not make such valuation, the agreement is avoided; provided that if the goods or any part thereof have been delivered to and appropriated by the buyer he must pay a reasonable price therefor.

(2.) Where such third party is prevented from making the valuation by the fault of the seller or buyer, the party not in fault may maintain an action for damages against the party in fault.

Conditions and Warranties.

Stipulations as to time.

12.—(1.) Unless a different intention appears from the terms of the contract, stipulations as to time of payment are not deemed to be of the essence of a contract of sale. Whether any other stipulation as to time is of the essence of the contract or not depends on the terms of the contract.

(2.) In a contract of sale "month" means prima facie calendar month.

13.—(1.) Where a contract of sale is subject to any condition to be fulfilled by the seller, the buyer may waive the condition, or may elect to treat the breach of such condition as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for treating the contract as repudiated.

When condition to be treated as warranty.

(2.) Whether a stipulation in a contract of sale is a condition, the breach of which may give rise to a right to treat the contract as repudiated, or a warranty, the breach of which may give rise to a claim for damages but not to a right to reject the goods and treat the contract as repudiated, depends in each case on the construction of the contract. A stipulation may be a condition, though called a warranty in the contract.

(3.) Where a contract of sale is not severable, and the buyer has accepted the goods, or part thereof, or where the contract is for specific goods, the property in which has passed to the buyer, the breach of any condition to be fulfilled by the seller can only be treated as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for rejecting the goods and treating the contract as repudiated, unless there be a term of the contract, express or implied, to that effect.

(4.) Nothing in this section shall affect the case of any condition or warranty, fulfilment of which is excused by law by reason of impossibility or otherwise.

14. In a contract of sale, unless the circumstances of the contract are such as to show a different intention, there is—

Implied undertaking as to title, &c.

(1.) An implied condition on the part of the seller that in the case of a sale he has a right to sell the goods, and that in the case of an agreement to sell he will have a right to sell the goods at the time when the property is to pass :

(2.) An implied warranty that the buyer shall have and enjoy quiet possession of the goods :

(3.) An implied warranty that the goods shall be free from any charge or encumbrance in favour of any third party, not declared or known to the buyer before or at the time when the contract is made.

15. Where there is a contract for the sale of goods by description, there is an implied condition that the goods shall correspond with the description ; and if the sale be by sample, as well as by description, it is not sufficient that the bulk of the goods corresponds with the sample if the goods do not also correspond with the description.

Sale by description.

16. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and of any Ordinance in that behalf, there is no implied warranty or condition as to the quality or fitness for any particular purpose of goods supplied under a contract of sale, except as follows :—

Implied condition as to quality or fitness.

- (1.) Where the buyer, expressly or by implication, makes known to the seller the particular purpose for which the goods are required, so as to show that the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment, and the goods are of a description which it is in the course of the seller's business to supply (whether he be the manufacturer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be reasonably fit for such purpose, provided that in the case of a contract for the sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name, there is no implied condition as to its fitness for any particular purpose :
- (2.) Where goods are bought by description, from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he be the manufacturer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be of merchantable quality ; provided that if the buyer has examined the goods, there shall be no implied condition as regards defects which such examination ought to have revealed :
- (3.) An implied warranty or condition as to quality or fitness for a particular purpose may be annexed by the usage of trade.
- (4.) An express warranty or condition does not negative a warranty or condition implied by this Ordinance unless inconsistent therewith.

Sale by Sample.

17.—(1.) A contract of sale is a contract for sale by sample where there is a term in the contract, express or implied, to that effect.

(2.) In the case of a contract for sale by sample—

- (a.) There is an implied condition that the bulk shall correspond with the sample in quality :
- (b.) There is an implied condition that the buyer shall have a reasonable opportunity of comparing the bulk with the sample :
- (c.) There is an implied condition that the goods shall be free from any defect, rendering them merchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination of the sample.

PART II.

EFFECTS OF THE CONTRACT.

Transfer of Property as between Seller and Buyer.

Goods must
tained.

18. Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained goods no property in the goods is transferred to the buyer unless and until the goods are ascertained.

19.—(1.) Where there is a contract for the sale of specific or ascertained goods the property in them is transferred to the buyer at such time as the parties to the contract intend it to be transferred.

Property passes when intended to pass.

(2.) For the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties regard shall be had to the terms of the contract, the conduct of the parties, and the circumstances of the case.

20. Unless a different intention appears, the following are rules for ascertaining the intention of the parties as to the time at which the property in the goods is to pass to the buyer.

Rules for ascertaining intention.

Rule 1.—Where there is an unconditional contract for the sale of specific goods, in a deliverable state, the property in the goods passes to the buyer when the contract is made, and it is immaterial whether the time of payment or the time of delivery, or both, be postponed.

Rule 2.—Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods and the seller is bound to do something to the goods, for the purpose of putting them into a deliverable state, the property does not pass until such thing be done, and the buyer has notice thereof.

Rule 3.—Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods in a deliverable state, but the seller is bound to weigh, measure, test, or do some other act or thing with reference to the goods for the purpose of ascertaining the price, the property does not pass until such act or thing be done, and the buyer has notice thereof.

Rule 4.—When goods are delivered to the buyer on approval or “on sale or return” or other similar terms the property therein passes to the buyer:—

- (a.) When he signifies his approval or acceptance to the seller or does any other act adopting the transaction:
- (b.) If he does not signify his approval or acceptance to the seller but retains the goods without giving notice of rejection, then, if a time has been fixed for the return of the goods, on the expiration of such time, and, if no time has been fixed, on the expiration of a reasonable time. What is a reasonable time is a question of fact.

Rule 5.—(1.) Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained or future goods by description, and goods of that description and in a deliverable state are unconditionally appropriated to the contract, either by the seller with the assent of the buyer, or by the buyer with the assent of the seller, the property in the goods thereupon passes to the buyer. Such assent may be expressed or implied and may be given either before or after the appropriation is made:

- (2.) Where, in pursuance of the contract, the seller delivers the goods to the buyer or to a carrier or other bailee (whether named by the buyer or not) for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, and does not reserve the right of disposal, he is deemed to have unconditionally appropriated the goods to the contract.

Reservation
disposal.

21.—(1.) Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods or where goods are subsequently appropriated to the contract, the seller may, by the terms of the contract or appropriation, reserve the right of disposal of the goods until certain conditions are fulfilled. In such case, notwithstanding the delivery of the goods to the buyer, or to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer the property in the goods does not pass to the buyer until the conditions imposed by the seller are fulfilled.

(2.) Where goods are shipped, and by the bill of lading the goods are deliverable to the order of the seller or his agent, the seller is prima facie deemed to reserve the right of disposal.

(3.) Where the seller of goods draws on the buyer for the price, and transmits the bill of exchange and bill of lading to the buyer together to secure acceptance or payment of the bill of exchange, the buyer is bound to return the bill of lading if he does not honour the bill of exchange, and if he wrongfully retains the bill of lading the property in the goods does not pass to him.

Risk prima facie
perty.

22. Unless otherwise agreed, the goods remain at the seller's risk until the property therein is transferred to the buyer, but when the property therein is transferred to the buyer, the goods are at the buyer's risk whether delivery has been made or not.

Provided that where delivery has been delayed through the fault of either buyer or seller the goods are at the risk of the party in fault as regards any loss which might not have occurred but for such fault.

Provided also that nothing in this section shall affect the duties or liabilities of either seller or buyer as a bailee of the goods of the other party.

Transfer of Title.

Sale by per-
owner.

23.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, where goods are sold by a person who is not the owner thereof, and who does not sell them under the authority or with the consent of the owner, the buyer acquires no better title to the goods than the seller had, unless the owner of the goods is by his conduct precluded from denying the seller's authority to sell.

(2.) Provided also that nothing in this Ordinance shall affect—

(a.) The provisions of the Law of Merchant Shipping Ordinance, 1864, or any enactment, enabling the apparent owner of goods to dispose of them as if he were the true owner thereof;

(b.) The validity of any contract of sale under any special common law or statutory power of sale or under the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

24. Where goods are sold in any public market held under the authority of the Government or otherwise in accordance with the law according to the usage of the market, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith and without notice of any defect or want of title on the part of the seller.

Goods sold in Public Market.

25. When the seller of goods has a voidable title thereto, but his title has not been avoided at the time of the sale, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith and without notice of the seller's defect of title.

Sale under voidable title.

26.—(1) Where goods have been stolen and the offender is prosecuted to conviction, the property in the goods so stolen reverts in the person who was the owner of the goods or his personal representative, notwithstanding any intermediate dealing with them, whether by sale in public market or otherwise.

Reverting of property in stolen goods on conviction of offender.

(2.) Notwithstanding any enactment to the contrary, where goods have been obtained by fraud or other wrongful means not amounting to larceny, the property in such goods shall not revert in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his personal representative, by reason only of the conviction of the offender.

27.—(1). Where a person having sold goods continues or is in possession of the goods, or of the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title under any sale, pledge or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were expressly authorised by the owner of the goods to make the same.

Seller or buyer in possession after sale.

(2.) Where a person having bought or agreed to buy goods obtains, with the consent of the seller, possession of the goods or the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title, under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of any lien or other right of the original seller in respect of the goods, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were a mercantile agent in possession of the goods or documents of title with the consent of the owner.

(3.) In this section the term "mercantile agent" shall mean a mercantile agent having in the customary course of his business as such agent authority either to sell goods or to consign goods for the purpose of sale or to buy goods or to raise money on the security of goods.

Effect of writ of execution.

28. A writ of execution against goods shall bind the property in the goods of the execution debtor as from the time when the writ is delivered to the marshal or bailiff to be executed; and, for the better manifestation of such time, it shall be the duty of the marshal or bailiff without fee, upon the receipt of any such writ to endorse upon the back thereof the hour, day, month, and year when he received the same.

Provided that no such writ shall prejudice the title to such goods acquired by any person in good faith and for valuable consideration, unless such person had at the time when he acquired his title notice that such writ or any other writ by virtue of which the goods of the execution debtor might be seized or attached had been delivered to and remained unexecuted in the hands of the marshal or bailiff.

PART III.

PERFORMANCE OF THE CONTRACT.

Duties of seller and buyer.

29. It is the duty of the seller to deliver the goods, and of the buyer to accept and pay for them, in accordance with the terms of the contract of sale.

Payment and delivery are concurrent conditions.

30. Unless otherwise agreed, delivery of the goods and payment of the price are concurrent conditions, that is to say, the seller must be ready and willing to give possession of the goods to the buyer in exchange for the price, and the buyer must be ready and willing to pay the price in exchange for possession of the goods.

Rules as to delivery.

31.—(1.) Whether it is for the buyer to take possession of the goods or for the seller to send them to the buyer is a question depending in each case on the contract, express or implied, between the parties. Apart from any such contract, express or implied, the place of delivery is the seller's place of business, if he have one, and if not, his residence. Provided that, if the contract be for the sale of specific goods, which to the knowledge of the parties, when the contract is made are in some other place, then that place is the place of delivery.

(2.) Where under the contract or sale the seller is bound to send the goods to the buyer, but no time for sending them is fixed, the seller is bound to send them within a reasonable time.

(3.) Where the goods at the time of sale are in the possession of a third person, there is no delivery by seller to buyer unless and until such third person acknowledges to the buyer that he holds the goods on his behalf; provided that nothing in this section shall affect the operation of the issue or transfer of any document of title to goods.

(4.) Demand or tender of delivery may be treated as ineffectual unless made at a reasonable hour. What is a reasonable hour is a question of fact.

(5.) Unless otherwise agreed, the expenses of and incidental to putting the goods into a deliverable state must be borne by the seller.

32.—(1.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods less than he contracted to sell, the buyer may reject them, but if the buyer accepts the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate. Delivery of wrong quantity.

(2.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods larger than he contracted to sell, the buyer may accept the goods included in the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole. If the buyer accepts the whole of the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate.

(3.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer the goods he contracted to sell mixed with goods of different description not included in the contract, the buyer may accept the goods which are in accordance with the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole.

(4.) The provisions of this section are subject to any usage of trade, special agreement, or course of dealing between the parties.

33.—(1.) Unless otherwise agreed, the buyer of goods is not bound to accept delivery thereof by instalments. Instalment deliveries.

(2.) Where there is a contract for the sale of goods to be delivered by stated instalments, which are to be separately paid for, and the seller makes defective deliveries in respect of one or more instalments, or the buyer neglects or refuses to take delivery of or pay for one or more instalments, it is a question in each case depending on the terms of the contract and the circumstances of the case, whether the breach of contract is a repudiation of the whole contract or whether it is a severable breach giving rise to a claim for compensation but not to a right to treat the whole contract as repudiated.

34.—(1.) Where, in pursuance of a contract of sale, the seller is authorized or required to send the goods to the buyer, delivery of the goods to a carrier, whether named by the buyer or not, for the purpose of transmission to the buyer is prima facie deemed to be a delivery of the goods to the buyer.

(2.) Unless otherwise authorized by the buyer, the seller must make such contract with the carrier on behalf of the buyer as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and the other circumstances of the case. If the seller omit so to do, and the goods are lost or damaged in course of transit, the buyer may decline to treat the delivery to the carrier as a delivery to himself, or may hold the seller responsible in damages.

(3.) Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are sent by the seller to the buyer by a route involving sea transit, under circumstances in which it is usual to insure, the seller must give such notice to the buyer as may enable him to insure them during their sea transit, and, if the seller fails to do so, the goods shall be deemed to be at his risk during such sea transit.

Risk where
distant place.

35. Where the seller of goods agrees to deliver them at his own risk at a place other than that where they are when sold, the buyer must, nevertheless, unless otherwise agreed, take any risk of deterioration in the goods necessarily incident to the course of transit.

Buyer's right
the goods.

36 —(1.) Where goods are delivered to the buyer, which he has not previously examined, he is not deemed to have accepted them unless and until he has had a reasonable opportunity of examining them for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

(2.) Unless otherwise agreed, when the seller tenders delivery of goods to the buyer, he is bound, on request, to afford the buyer a reasonable opportunity of examining the goods for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

Acceptance.

37. The buyer is deemed to have accepted the goods when he intimates to the seller that he has accepted them, or when the goods have been delivered to him, and he does any act in relation to them which is inconsistent with the ownership of the seller, or when after the lapse of a reasonable time, he retains the goods without intimating to the seller that he has rejected them.

Buyer not bound to re-
goods.

38. Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are delivered to the buyer, and he refuses to accept them, having the right so to do, he is not bound to return them to the seller, but it is sufficient if he intimates to the seller that he refuses to accept them.

39. When the seller is ready and willing to deliver the goods, and requests the buyer to take delivery, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time after such request take delivery of the goods, he is liable to the seller for any loss occasioned by his neglect or refusal to take delivery, and also for a reasonable charge for the care and custody of the goods. Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the seller where the neglect or refusal of the buyer to take delivery amounts to a repudiation of the contract.

Liability of buyer for neglecting or refusing delivery of goods.

PART IV.

RIGHTS OF UNPAID SELLER AGAINST THE GOODS.

40.—(1.) The seller of goods is deemed to be an "unpaid seller" within the meaning of this Ordinance—

Unpaid seller defined.

- (a.) When the whole of the price has not been paid or tendered ;
- (b.) When a bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument has been received as conditional payment, and the condition on which it was received has not been fulfilled by reason of the dishonour of the instrument or otherwise.

(2.) In this part of this Ordinance the term "seller" includes any person who is in the position of a seller, as, for instance, an agent of the seller to whom the bill of lading has been indorsed, or a consignor or agent who has himself paid, or is directly responsible for the price.

41.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, and of any Ordinance in that behalf, notwithstanding that the property in the goods may have passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller of goods, as such, has by implication of law—

Unpaid seller's rights.

- (a.) A lien on the goods or right to retain them for the price while he is in possession of them ;
- (b.) In case of the insolvency of the buyer, a right of stopping the goods in transitu after he has parted with the possession of them ;
- (c.) A right of re-sale as limited by this Ordinance.

(2.) Where the property in goods has not passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller has, in addition to his other remedies, a right of withholding delivery similar to and co-extensive with his rights of lien and stoppage in transitu where the property has passed to the buyer.

Unpaid Seller's Lien.

42.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the unpaid seller of goods who is in possession of them is entitled to retain possession of them until payment or tender of the price in the following cases, namely :—

- (a.) Where the goods have been sold without any stipulation as to credit ;
- (b.) Where the goods have been sold on credit, but the term of credit has expired ;
- (c.) Where the buyer becomes insolvent.

(2.) The seller may exercise his right of lien notwithstanding that he is in possession of the goods as agent or bailee for the buyer.

Part delivery.

43. Where an unpaid seller has made part delivery of the goods, he may exercise his right of lien or retention on the remainder, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement to waive the lien or right of retention.

Termination of lien.

44.—(1.) The unpaid seller of goods loses his lien or right of retention thereon—

- (a.) When he delivers the goods to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer without reserving the right of disposal of the goods ;
- (b.) When the buyer or his agent lawfully obtains possession of the goods ;
- (c.) By waiver thereof.

(2.) The unpaid seller of goods, having a lien or right of retention thereon, does not lose his lien or right of retention by reason only that he has obtained judgment or decree for the price of the goods.

Stoppage in transitu.

Right of stoppage in transitu.

45. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, when the buyer of goods becomes insolvent, the unpaid seller who has parted with the possession of the goods has the right of stopping them in transitu that is to say, he may resume possession of the goods as long as they are in course of transit, and may retain them until payment or tender of the price.

Duration of transit.

46.—(1.) Goods are deemed to be in course of transit from the time when they are delivered to a carrier by land or water, or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, until the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, takes delivery of them from such carrier or other bailee.

(2.) If the buyer or his agent in that behalf obtains delivery of the goods before their arrival at the appointed destination, the transit is at an end.

(3.) If, after the arrival of the goods at the appointed destination, the carrier or other bailee acknowledges to the buyer, or his agent, that he holds the goods on his behalf and continues in possession of them as bailee for the buyer, or his agent, the transit is at an end, and it is immaterial that a further destination for the goods may have been indicated by the buyer.

(4.) If the goods are rejected by the buyer, and the carrier or other bailee continues in possession of them, the transit is not deemed to be at an end, even if the seller has refused to receive them back.

(5.) When goods are delivered to a ship chartered by the buyer it is a question depending on the circumstances of the particular case, whether they are in the possession of the master as a carrier, or as agent to the buyer.

(6.) Where the carrier or other bailee wrongfully refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the transit is deemed to be at an end.

(7.) Where part delivery of the goods has been made to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the remainder of the goods may be stopped in transitu, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement to give up possession of the whole of the goods.

47.—(1.) The unpaid seller may exercise his right of stoppage in transitu either by taking actual possession of the goods, or by giving notice of his claim to the carrier or other bailee in whose possession the goods are. Such notice may be given either to the person in actual possession of the goods or to his principal. In the latter case the notice, to be effectual, must be given at such time and under such circumstances that the principal, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, may communicate it to his servant or agent in time to prevent a delivery to the buyer.

How stoppage in transitu is effected.

(2.) When notice of stoppage in transitu is given by the seller to the carrier, or other bailee in possession of the goods, he must re-deliver the goods to, or according to the directions of, the seller. The expenses of such re-delivery must be borne by the seller.

Re-sale by Buyer or Seller

48. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu is not affected by any sale, or other disposition of the goods which the buyer may have made, unless the seller has assented thereto.

Effect of sub-sale or pledge by buyer.

Provided that where a document of title to goods has been lawfully transferred to any person as buyer or owner of the goods, and that person transfers the document to a person who takes the document in good faith and for valuable consideration, then, if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of sale the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu is defeated, and if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of pledge or other disposition for value, the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu can only be exercised subject to the rights of the transferee.

rescinded by lien or stop-

49.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this section, a contract of sale is not rescinded by the mere exercise by an unpaid seller of his right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu.

(2.) Where an unpaid seller who has exercised his right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu re-sells the goods, the buyer acquires a good title thereto as against the original buyer.

(3.) Where the goods are of a perishable nature, or where the unpaid seller gives notice to the buyer of his intention to resell, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time pay or tender the price, the unpaid seller may re-sell the goods and recover from the original buyer damages for any loss occasioned by his breach of contract.

(4.) Where the seller expressly reserves a right of re-sale in case the buyer should make default, and on the buyer making default, re-sells the goods, the original contract of sale is thereby rescinded, but without prejudice to any claim the seller may have for damages.

PART V.

ACTIONS FOR BREACH OF THE CONTRACT.

Remedies of the Seller.

50.—(1.) Where, under a contract of sale, the property in the goods has passed to the buyer, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay for the goods according to the terms of the contract, the seller may maintain an action against him for the price of the goods.

(2.) Where, under a contract of sale, the price is payable on a day certain irrespective of delivery, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay such price, the seller may maintain an action for the price, although the property in the goods has not passed, and the goods have not been appropriated to the contract.

Damages for
ance.

51.—(1.) Where the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to accept and pay for the goods, the seller may maintain an action against him for damages for non-acceptance.

(2.) The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the buyer's breach of contract.

(3.) Where there is an available market for the goods in question the measure of damages is prima facie to be ascertained by the difference between the contract price and the market or current price at the time or times when the goods ought to have been accepted, or, if no time was fixed for acceptance, then at the time of the refusal to accept.

Remedies of the Buyer.

52.—(1.) Where the seller wrongfully neglects or refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, the buyer may maintain an action against the seller for damages for non-delivery.

(2.) The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the seller's breach of contract.

(3.) Where there is an available market for the goods in question the measure of damages is prima facie to be ascertained by the difference between the contract price and the market or current price of the goods at the time or times when they ought to have been delivered, or, if no time was fixed, then at the time of the refusal to deliver.

53. In any action for breach of contract to deliver specific or ascertained goods the court may, if it thinks fit on the application of the plaintiff, by its judgment or decree direct that the contract shall be performed specifically, without giving the defendant the option of retaining the goods on payment of damages. The judgment or decree may be unconditional, or upon such terms and conditions as to damages, payment of the price, and otherwise, as to the court may seem just, and the application by the plaintiff may be made at any time before judgment or decree.

54.—(1.) Where there is a breach of warranty by the seller, or where the buyer elects, or is compelled, to treat any breach of a condition on the part of the seller as a breach of warranty the buyer is not by reason only of such breach of warranty entitled to reject the goods ; but he may

(a.) set up against the seller the breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price ; or (b.) maintain an action against the seller for damages for the breach of warranty.

Specific performance.

Remedy for breach of warranty.

(2.) The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the breach of warranty.

(3.) In the case of breach of warranty of quality such loss is prima facie the difference between the value of the goods at the time of delivery to the buyer and the value they would have had if they had answered to the warranty.

(4.) The fact that the buyer has set up the breach of warranty in diminution or extinction of the price does not prevent him from maintaining an action for the same breach of warranty if he has suffered further damage.

Interest and
ages.

55 Nothing in this Ordinance shall affect the right of the buyer or the seller to recover interest or special damages in any case where by law interest or special damages may be recoverable, or to recover money paid where the consideration for the payment of it has failed.

PART VI.

Exclusion of
conditions.

56. Where any right, duty, or liability would arise under a contract of sale by implication of law, it may be negatived or varied by express agreement or by the course of dealing between the parties, or by usage, if the usage be such as to bind both parties to the contract.

Reasonable
tion of fact.

57. Where, by this Ordinance, any reference is made to a reasonable time the question what is a reasonable time is a question of fact.

Rights, &c.,
by action.

58. Where any right, duty, or liability is declared by this Ordinance, it may unless otherwise by this Ordinance provided, be enforced by action.

Auction sales

59. In the case of a sale by auction—

(1.) Where goods are put up for sale by auction in lots, each lot is prima facie deemed to be the subject of a separate contract of sale:

(2.) A sale by auction is complete when the auctioneer announces its completion by the fall of the hammer, or in other customary manner. Until such announcement is made any bidder may retract his bid:

(3.) Where a sale by auction is not notified to be subject to a right to bid on behalf of the seller, it shall not be lawful for the seller to bid himself or to employ any person to bid at such sale, or for the auctioneer knowingly to take any bid from the seller or any such person: Any sale contravening this rule may be treated as fraudulent by the buyer:

- (4.) A sale by auction may be notified to be subject to a reserved or upset price, and a right to bid may also be reserved expressly by or on behalf of the seller.

Where a right to bid is expressly reserved, but not otherwise, the seller, or any one person on his behalf, may bid at the auction.

60.—(1.) The rules in insolvency relating to contracts of sale Savings. shall continue to apply thereto, notwithstanding anything in this Ordinance contained.

(2.) The rules of the English law, including the law merchant, save in so far as they are inconsistent with the express provisions of this Ordinance, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent, warranty, suretyship and the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, or other invalidating cause, shall apply to contracts for the sale of goods and the rules of the Roman-Dutch law shall not apply.

(3.) The provisions of this Ordinance relating to contracts of sale do not apply to any transaction in the form of a contract of sale which is intended to operate by way of mortgage, pledge, charge, or other security.

61. This Ordinance shall come into operation on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and fourteen. Commence-

DEMERARA TURF CLUB, LTD.

The following judgments were delivered:—

RAYNER, C.J.: In this case the plaintiff claims from The Demerara Turf Club, $480, being the amount of a prize which he alleges his horse, Ethel-a-Do, won in a race held under the auspices of the club, on the 19th September, 1912, at Bel Air Park Races. The plaintiff and three other persons entered horses for the race in question, the "Turf Club Stakes." The four horses started, but when they had gone some distance, the starter stopped them, and re-started the race. The plaintiff's horse came in first, and he accordingly claims the stakes. Almost immediately after the conclusion of the race two of the owners of horses which had run, made a protest to the stewards against the stakes being awarded to the plaintiff's horse, on the ground that the start in the first instance was a good start, and that the starter ought not to have stopped the horses, and that the second start was improper and the running of the horses no race. The stewards upheld the objection and decided that as the race on the first start, which they decided was a valid race, was not finished, it should be run over again. The defendants allege that the plaintiff agreed to this course, but the plaintiff denies this, and says that his son, who represented him at the race meeting, though present in the stewards' box when the decision was come to, remained silent, and neither assented nor dissented. It was decided to run the race over again two days later, Saturday, the 21st September, but on that day the plaintiff's son wrote to the Secretary of the Club, declining to run his horse, and claiming the stakes. The race was run again on the 21st and another horse won, the owner of which has received the stakes.

The first question to be decided is whether the running of the horses, when the plaintiff's horse won was a good and valid race for the Turf Club Stakes. Several witnesses gave evidence that the start on the first occasion was a good start and that the starting gate which was used on the occasion was in good order and worked properly, and that there was no occasion to stop the race and make a fresh start, and the defendants contend that the action of the starter in so doing was improper and invalidated the race. The question depends upon the construction of the Rules of the Demerara Turf Club, under which the race was run, and which it is clear were binding on the plaintiff and all other persons who entered horses for it, as well as on the Club itself.

The Rule which deals with starting is Rule 16, paragraph (2) of which is as follows:—"Should the starter consider that through any faulty action of the starting gate a fair start has not been effected, he shall declare it "no start," and order the jockeys . . . to return to the post. The starter's decision on this point shall be final." The effect of that rule is to give absolute power over the start to the starter, and to make him sole judge as to whether a start is a fair start or not. The starter was not called at the trial, nor was any evidence given as to the reason why he re-started the horses, but in view of the terms of the rule, I think we must assume in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that he considered the start was not a fair one, and in pursuance of the power conferred on him by Rule 16, he re-started the horses. It appears to me that the Club and all persons who entered horses at this meeting agreed to make the starter sole judge as to the start, and that no matter how strong the evidence might be that a start was a fair one, it must be taken to be a false start if the starter so declares. The evidence therefore given in this case that the first start was a fair one, was in my opinion irrelevant, and could not upset the starter's decision. There is no doubt a good reason for investing the starter with such absolute power, for the same is the case in the English Jockey Club Rules.

The defendants however contend that this rule is modified by Rules 79 and 80, which provide for the decision of all disputes and objections by the Stewards with an appeal to the Directors. I am satisfied, however, that Rules 79 and 80 have no effect upon Rule 16, and that the Stewards have no power to question, much less to reverse, a decision of the starter as to a start. The questions which the Stewards have power to decide are all the objections which arise in the course of a race, other than the start. To hold otherwise would be to render meaningless the words "the starter's decision shall be final," for his decision could not be final if the Stewards could over-rule it. I am confirmed in this opinion by Rule 81, which deals with objections, and paragraph (3) of the rule specifies the various objections that can be made, such as crossing, jostling, not running the proper course, &c., but a false start is not one of the things specified, showing clearly I think, that a false start is not one of the things the Stewards have power to decide upon. Mr. Woolford, for the defendants, practically admitted in his reply that this is the effect of the rules. It follows therefore that as the only objection made by the two owners who objected, was as to the start, the Stewards had no power to entertain it, and their doing so was ultra vires. Mr. Woolford however contended that the decision of the Stewards, even though wrong, was binding upon the plaintiff under Rule 79 and that his remedy was to appeal to the Directors under Rule 80, and not to come to the Court. He cited to us certain cases to show that the decision of the Stewards of a race meeting is final. He cited Benbow v. Jones, (14 M. & W. 193) Ellis v. Hopper, (3 H. & N. 766) and Parr v. Winteringham, (1 Ellis & Ellis, 394). But those cases only decided that where the Stewards have been given power to award the prize and settle disputes, the parties must abide by their decision and cannot go behind it. The cases certainly do not decide that in all cases, and irrespective of the rules under which a race is run, the decisions of the stewards are to prevail. It is only where they have been given power to decide, that their decisions are to be conclusive. In all the cases cited, the rules gave the Stewards power to decide what they did decide, and the Court held that the parties affected could not dispute their decisions. Here in like manner the rules give the starter power to decide as to the start, and if authority were needed, these very cases show that his decision cannot be impeached.

The defendants however contend that the plaintiff agreed to the race being run over again, and thereby waived whatever rights he might have had in respect of the race in which his horse came in first. In paragraph 4 of the statement of defence, they allege that there was a verbal agreement to the race being run over again, but the evidence does not support this, for it is clear that the plaintiff's son said nothing when the matter of the objection was discussed in the Stewards' box. In my opinion the merely remaining silent and expressing no dissent, cannot in this case be taken as assent to the course decided on.

I am aware that there are cases in which remaining silent under circumstances when one would expect a denial, has been held to be evidence of assent. In Bessela v. Stern, (2 C. P. D. 265) a conversation, between the plaintiff and defendant was overheard in which the defendant on being taxed with promising to marry the plaintiff did not deny it, and that was held to be some corroborating evidence in an action for breach of promise of marriage. But in a later case, Wiedmann v. Walpole, ([1891] 2 Q.B. 534) the mere fact that the defendant did not answer letters written to him by the plaintiff, in which she stated he had promised to marry her was held not to be corroborating evidence.

Where silence is relied on as a proof of assent the surrounding circumstances must be had regard to, and unless those circumstances are such that one naturally expects the person remaining silent to object if he does not assent, his silence will not be taken as assent. Here I do not think the stewards were justified in assuming that the plaintiff's son assented to their proposal, unless he expressly said so. His silence is at least as consistent with a desire for time to consider his position and an opportunity to take advice, as it is with an implied assent.

Mr. Woolford tried to supplement the evidence of the witnesses by making use of an entry in the defendants' "Record of Races," a book in which is kept a record of all races run at their meetings. He contended that this entry proved that the plaintiff's son agreed to the race being run over again. The entry was not admitted in the Court below to prove this, but only for the purpose of proving that an objection had been made to the race, the original entry of the objection having been lost. But Mr. Woolford contended that the entry having been admitted for any purpose, we were bound to accept it as evidence of what was stated in it. It is clear that the entry could not have been admitted for the purpose of proving that the plaintiff agreed to the race being run again, but Mr. Woolford contended that no objection having been made to the admission of the book, the Judge was bound to receive it, and to have regard to what was stated in the entry. I am not prepared to assent to such a proposition of law, and in my opinion, the authority cited in support of it, Lord Halsbury's laws of England, vol. 13, p. 421, does not bear such an interpretation. But even if we have regard to what is stated in the entry, I do not think it helps the defendants. It is to the effect that the Stewards decided that the race should be run over again, and that the owners of the horses were then "summoned to the Stewards' box and notified of their decision and were asked when they would like the race to be run over. They all agreed to run it on Saturday, the 21st September." If this is correct, it is clear that the owners were never asked to consent to the race being run over again, but were informed that the stewards had decided that it was to be run again, and were then asked when they would like to run it. No doubt the other three owners agreed to Saturday for the race to be run again, but I am satisfied that the plaintiff's son did not. He took no part in the discussion, and then having taken the advice of his friends, he wrote the letter to the Secretary of the Club claiming to have won the race, and declining to run it again. There was clearly no "verbal agreement" such as is alleged in by the defendants in the pleadings, and there has been no conduct on the part of the plaintiff which amounts to a waiver of his rights, or which estops him from bringing this action.

The only other point I need refer to, is the contention that the plaintiff, by accepting the prize in another race, the "Merchants Cup," run on the next day of the race meeting, in which his horse won the second prize, is estopped from bringing this action. As we intimated at the hearing, it is impossible to hold that a man is debarred from claiming the prize in a disputed race, because he accepts the prize in another separate and distinct race, about which there is no dispute.

The judgment of the Court below must be affirmed, and the appeal dismissed with costs.

HILL, Actg. J.: This is an appeal by the defendants from a decision in the limited jurisdiction of this Court, in which judgment was given for the plaintiff Berkeley for $40, and costs.

Counsel for the defendants in his reply at the hearing of the appeal, in effect abandoned his reasons as set out in reasons 1, 2, 3, 4, (a), (b), (g), (h) and rested his case on reasons 4 (h), (i), and (j), which are as follows.

"4 (h). The respondent not having lodged any objection or protest under the rules and not having appealed against the decision of the Stewards of the meeting which decision was communicated to him was debarred from maintaining an action against the appellants by reason of the said rule and regulations of the Appellants Club subject to which the said race meeting was held, and the respondents entry for the said race accepted."

"(i). The respondent was estopped from bringing the said action against the appellants."

"(j). The respondent waived his right to maintain any proceedings against the appellants."

The other Reasons which remain are

"4 (c). The learned Judge erred in rejecting any portion of the minute signed by the Clerk of the Course and contained in the "Record Book" tendered at the trial."

"4 (d). It was proved at the hearing that the respondent consented on the 19th day of September, 1912, to the said race being run over at 3 p.m., on Saturday, the 21st September, 1912."

"4 (e). The learned Judge omitted to pronounce any decision on two points of law raised both on the pleadings and at the hearing viz: that the plaintiff was estopped by his conduct and all the circumstances attendant on the said race and in consenting to the race being run over from claiming the said prize money or sweepstakes and that the plaintiff had in all the circumstances appearing upon the record waived his right to bring any action."

I propose to deal first with Reason 4 (c) and (j) leaving to the last, consideration of what is really the crux of the question, Reasons (h) and (i) with Reasons 4 (d) and (e).

Reason 4 (c). This "Record Book" is kept under Rule 23, of the Rules and Regulations of the Demerara Turf Club, Ltd., which is as follows. "A Record Book shall be kept and all races run shall be entered therein by the Clerk of the Course." It was admitted at the hearing as such, and for no more, and, by consent, the portion of an entry therein, showing the contents of the protest lodged by Messrs. Flood and Cipriani, which had since been lost, was admitted. It was contended in this Court that the whole entry was admissible, and as a fact had been admitted. That the latter contention was incorrect is shown by the admission, by consent, of the contents of the protest. I am satisfied, further, that it was not admissible. There is nothing in the Rule (23) which requires the Clerk to make any entries in connection with a race not run, (if appellants contention be correct,) and on that ground alone any such entry would be inadmissible, but when in addition we have the fact that the entry was made some days after the races, and with full knowledge of respondents intention to claim the stakes, and that it certainly was not an entry against interest, there can be no question that its rejection was proper.

Reason 4 (j).—It was contended that because the respondent received $50 a second prize in the "Merchants Cup" and gave a receipt, he had waived his right to maintain any proceedings against the appellants. The Court were of opinion that such a receipt would not have the effect as submitted, and there was nothing to show that respondent waived any of his claim as contained in the letter of the 24th September, 1912, from his counsel to the Secretary of the Turf Club.

Reasons 4 (h) (i) with (d) and (e).—The consideration of these reasons as set out involve the interpretation of Rule 16 (2) which reads as follows:— "Should the starter consider that through any faulty action of the Starting Gate a fair start has not been effected, he shall declare it "no start," and order the jockeys by means of a white re-call flag to return to the post. The starter's decision "on this point shall be final."

In regard to this rule it appeared at the outset of this matter, that while the decision of the starter is said to be final, such a decision might be open to review could it be shown that the Starting Gate was not faulty, and on the evidence at the hearing, this requirement had not been fulfilled, hence the action of the Stewards was ultra vires, and the race as re-run on the second start on the Thursday must be held to be good. At the present hearing, however, after considering the exhaustive arguments submitted by counsel for the appellants, together with the Rules of the Demerara Turf Club bearing on the point, and the rules of racing under the Jockey Club having special reference to Rules 12, 35, 36, 166, 167 and 168, I am forced to the conclusion (as was also counsel for appellant, in his reply on the case), that the power of the starter under Local Rule 16 (2) is absolute, and that the Stewards, to use counsel's expression, could not go behind it. But there my agreement with him ends, for in his further submission that, granting the Stewards were wrong in ordering the race to be run over on the Saturday, the respondent by not objecting and taking the matter to the Directors, was debarred from taking legal action in the manner he had done, and was estopped, I can see nothing.

The starters decision being final, the reception even of any protest from anyone on the ground that the starting gate was not faulty, was contrary to the rules. Its consideration carried the impropriety further, and the Stewards conclusion to run the race over was ultra vires. It was not competent for the Stewards to act as they did; it would not have been competent for the Directors even to have enquired into the decision of the starter as regards the faultiness of the Starting Gate, or otherwise.

For the Stewards to require a protest to be lodged by the respondent as suggested by them he should have done, there must be some question involved over which the Stewards had jurisdiction and on which they had given a decision to which he had objected. Because he did not perpetuate the now admittedly wrong-doing of the Stewards, (and possibly, if he had done so, jeopardised his legal position), he is to be mulct. He preferred to stand on his rights, and to adopt the course he did. There could be no dispute, or objection, to the starters decision. Therefore it could not come under the category of disputes, objections, and appeals, referred to in Rule 79, and which, in my opinion, clearly have reference to objections and disputes on matters of fact such as are mentioned in Rules 58 (1), (2) and (3) and 81; such as might occur in the running of a race e.g., crossing, jostling, bumping, and boring, &c.

All the authorities quoted by counsel for the appellants go to show that from the decision of the authority in whom finality rests there is no appeal. The starters decision was final on the question of fact involved in the suggestion that he had erred in re-starting the race. That decision could not be appealed from by anybody to anybody, and as I have said, from the reception by the Stewards of the protest, based on the grounds it was, and their actions consequent thereon, was one continuous error on the part of that body.

I am of opinion that the starters action was not capable of question, and the race having been run, the Judge having put her number up as winner, and the jockey having satisfactorily weighed in, "Ethel-a-Do" was properly declared the winner.

The foregoing deals with reasons 4 (h) and (i) and all that remain are reasons 4 (d) and (e)—which I will take together.

For the purposes of argument, I will assume that the respondent did consent, expressly, to run the race over on the Saturday, at 3 p.m. But that consent was obtained from him on its being represented to him that on account of the starters' wrong action, the Stewards had decided to run the race over, and he was asked what time would be convenient to him. This was a misrepresentation to him of an authority on the part of the Stewards which they did not possess, innocent I have no doubt, but the effect of such innocent misrepresentation is to nullify any consent that may have been obtained from the equally innocent respondent.

But I am not at all satisfied that the weight of evidence is such as to entitle me to consider that respondent did so consent. I do not propose to detail the statements of the various witnesses. On the one hand there is the evidence of Messrs. Nelson and James Cannon, on the other the evidence of Mr. Berkeley, and its inferential corroboration by the evidence of jockey Landon as to Berkeley's statement to him on the Friday morning that he did not intend to run his horse on the Saturday. Mr. Hutson's and Mr. Andrews' evidence, though negative, is in favour of the respondent. Further one might have expected from the body of Stewards who were present or from Messrs. Flood or Cipriani, some evidence as to Mr. Berkeley's consent. Those Stewards were Messrs. Jules Parraudau, Cameron, and Cassels in addition to George Garnett, Hutson, and Andrew. The weight of evidence was, in my opinion, in favour of the respondent.

Some argument was addressed to us in regard to estoppel by conduct, Berkeley not having objected at the time. I decline to consider this at all, although I have no doubt as to what conclusion I would come. The allegation in the pleadings refers to a verbal agreement, and no allegation of estoppel by conduct is set up.

Reference has also been made to a letter dated 21st September, 1912, written by Dr. Massiah and signed by Mr. Berkeley which commences "after due consideration." It is suggested that this shows that Berkeley did consent to run the race on the Saturday. I have dealt with the effect of consent, if there was such, obtained in the manner and under the circumstances, detailed, but, as I have also pointed before, Jockey Landon's evidence shows that on the Friday morning (20th September) Berkeley had told him his horse would not run.

In my opinion, the Stewards had no authority to "put off" this race to Saturday, or at all for the matter of that, or to order it to be run over, except with the consent of the owners of the horses.

The interpretation of Started is "every horse shall be considered as having started which is under the Starter's orders when the white flag is raised."

Local Rule 2 says "The Stewards of a meeting shall have full power to make (and if necessary to vary) all such arrangements for the conduct of the meeting as they think fit, and, under special circumstances, to put off any races from day to day." The corresponding rule of Racing under the Jockey Club (7) gives the Stewards of a meeting power "to abandon the meeting, or to abandon any races, or to postpone any races to the following day or days in the current week: provided always that all the races originally advertised shall be included in that day's programme on the official card, and that the meeting is not intended further than one day beyond the days originally allotted to that fixture."

It does not seem possible to me that under Rule 2 the Stewards had power to put off this race (without of course, consent) the horses having "started." Under the heading "Starter" Local Rule 16 (3) gives the possible cases in connection with re-starts. "A start in front of the starting post, or on the wrong course, shall be void, and the horses shall be started again as soon as practicable" and the corresponding English Rule 36 (2) is as follows: "A start in front of the starting post, or on a wrong course, or before the appointed time, is void, and the horses must be started again as soon as practicable, but in the event of any horse running the course from a false start, or from a void start, the owner, may, with the consent of the Stewards, withdraw his horse from the race; the horse shall nevertheless, be considered as having started."

And finally, Local Rule 57 (4) gives the cases in which races may be run again, and this Rule corresponds exactly with the English Rule 141. It reads, "If a race has been run by all the horses at wrong weights, or over a wrong course, or distance, or if the judge shall not have been in the box at the time the horses pass the winning post, the Stewards shall order the race to be run again the same day if practicable, but if otherwise it shall be void."

It therefore appears to me to be clear that the Stewards have no power to order a race to be run over except on the same day, as the "putting off" of a race cannot apply to where the horses have "started," and further, such authority to run over any race is limited to the causes for so doing which are set out in 57 (4) and could not apply to this particular case.

The judgment appealed from must stand, and this appeal be dismissed with costs.

FARRER MANBY, (Acting J.):—I agree.

We cannot say that the starter's action was wrong. It is a fact that he did stop the horses and re-start them. He could only do this by the authority of Rule 16 (2) and it must be presumed that he considered the action of the gate faulty until the contrary is proved.

In this case the evidence that he considered it was a good start is not strong enough.

The Steward's then, in my opinion, acted ultra vires. If they have power to act as they did then the wording of Rule 16 (2) as to the starter's decision being final is meaningless. Why give the starter this power if the Stewards can arbitrarily nullify his action?

I think the Stewards can only alter the result of the race if something illegal after the start takes place, e.g., boring.

It is argued that Rules 79 and 80 compel a dissatisfied owner to appeal from the Stewards to the Directors instead of or before coming into Court but I think, the Stewards having done something they could not legally do, this does not apply and the owner has his common law rights.

It is argued that the respondent's rights were waived.

(a) by consent to run over on Saturday.

(b) by accepting prize-money for another race without protest.

There is no proof of (a) and (b) he had already claimed and protested—vide letter 21st February,—when he accepted the money—further there is no evidence before the Court as to whether prize-money is paid in portion or in final settlement at the end of the meeting.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 19TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1913.

CONSOLIDATED RUBBER AND BALATA ESTATES, LIMITED,

versus

BRITISH GUIANA BALATA COMPANY, LIMITED.

Balata—Ordinance 24 of 1911—Ownership—Burden of Proof—Sections 3 (1), 4, 5, and 6—Boundaries—Appeal.

The following judgment was delivered:—

HULL, J.: This is an appeal against a decision by the Commissioner of Lands and Mines awarding the respondents 808 lbs. of balata out of a total of 1,208 lbs., which had been found in the possession of certain men—the servants of the respondents—on land over which the Consolidated had rights of collection of balata, India Rubber, and similar substances.

The circumstances shew that Linnell, an agent of the Consolidated, seized some balata on the right bank Karani Creek, on Licence A 942 held by the Consolidated.

The men present in whose possession the balata was, made no objection to the seizure, saying "they did not know their whereabouts." The balata so seized amounted to 1,208 lbs. Thereupon Mr. Edwards, for the B. G. Balata Company wrote to the Commissioner on 5th August, 1913, appealing to him under section 4 of Ordinance 24 of 1911 (Balata Ordinance) and asked that the matter should be dealt with under section 5. In a postscript he adds, "From what facts I can gather I am disposed to believe that this Mr. Linnell has mistaken the Wallaba Creek for the Black Creek as our men were working on the east bank of the Wallaba, which is quite a distance from the Black Creek, and further he entered our A 885 by making a detour from Karani up and around our back and entered through our 731 or 1,210 working his way along from west to east."

The Commissioner in his reasons for decision states, "as no divisional line had ever been cut, the representative of the British Guiana Balata Company, Limited,

"Mr. Edwards, requested me to have this line cut and surveyed as provided for under section 3 (1) of the Balata Ordinance already referred to, and I accordingly despatched Mr. Tronchin, a surveyor of this Department to cut the line. This was done and he submitted a report and plan of the survey, copies of which were supplied to both parties to the dispute before the case was heard."

Under section 3 (1) the determination of boundary disputes is commenced by a request from any licensee interested, in writing to the Commissioner to define the boundary. There is no evidence before me that such a request was made by Mr. Edwards, but the Commissioner in his reasons for decision states he was so requested by Mr. Edwards "as provided for in section 3 (1)." It may be that the postscript to Mr. Edwards' letter of 5th August, 1913, was considered a request, as it certainly would seem to show the necessity of the delimitation of the boundary, or it may be there is some other written request not before this Court.

But under section 4 of the Balata Ordinance (the marginal note to which is "determination of other disputes by Commissioner in first instance") "all disputes as to the ownership of any balata upon any grant . . . may be decided by the Commissioner of Lands and Mines in the first instance or by any officer of the department authorised by him in writing," and section 5 gives the powers of the Commissioner as to evidence, and, inter alia, gives power to the Commissioner "to make such investigation personally or by means of any officer or officers of his Department, and all reports, plans, and records of his department shall be received in evidence for this purpose."

The settlement therefore of such disputes in my opinion shows that the question of boundary would probably arise, and its further possibility is shown by section 6 of the same Ordinance which enacts "any person who is aggrieved by any decision of the Commissioner under the preceding section may appeal from such decision, except as regards boundaries, to the Supreme Court on any question of fact and law."

In my opinion therefore no appeal is sustainable on the question of the boundary as shown on the plan by Mr. Tronchin, but I may say that I do not think that that plan in so far as it deals with the Karani Creek, (and this would seem to have been the sole cause of objection on the part of Messrs. McTurk and Cunningham for the Consolidated), affects the question, as it is clear that the balata was bled at some distance from the Karani Creek.

The source of the Black Creek, as defined by Mr. Tronchin, must be taken as the point of demarcation and a line running due north from that point is the divisional line between the tracts of land licensed to the respective parties under Licences A 942 and A 885 in regard to their western and eastern boundaries. The northern boundary is the watershed and not the source of the Karani Creek.

The Commissioner however, is in error, in his facts, and necessarily, on his conclusions drawn therefrom when he states that licence A 942 was issued after A 885 for while the former is dated 9th January, 1908, as a matter of fact, as shown on it, it runs for 15 years from 29 March, 1906, and is issued in lieu of 285, while licence A 885 is dated 11th December, 1907, and runs for 15 years, from that date.

But this does not affect the question before the Court s. c., who is entitled to the balata, especially when it would seem that the balata was bled at some distance from the Kaiani Creek.

The Commissioner under section 5 had to make "such order as to the final disposition of the balata . . . as he may think just." At the hearing before him Mr. Edwards for the B. G. Balata Coy., accepted Tronchin's plan, and called no evidence. It is contended for the appellants that the Commissioner should have required the respondents to show how their servants obtained the balata, that the onus was not on them, but on the respondents as the balata seized was found on the land held by them under licence A 942. On the other hand the respondents contended that the onus was on the other side, that their men, although trespassers, were not malæ fide, but in innocence, and were in physical possession of balata some of which had clearly been bled on the land held by them under A 885.

It is clear from the evidence that the Consolidated men had not worked on their tract of land this year, and it was therefore to be presumed that all trees found bled on that tract had been so bled by the trespassers. The Commissioner, as I have said, under section 5 had to make such order as to the final disposal of the balata as he might deem just. Mr. Tronchin in his report of 25th August, 1913, states that "on completing the boundary line I had a consultation with the representatives of the two companies, Mr. S. Barclay for the B.G. Balata Company, and Mr. G. Linnell for the C.R.

& B. Estates, Limited, and decided to count in their presence all recently bled trees on the trespass area."

His investigation showed 53 trees recently bled, 35 trees of an earlier bleeding, and 41 trees, "about a year ago." He concludes that "53 certainly and 35 possibly had contributed to the 1,208 lbs. balata." Mr. Linnell, in a letter to Mr. Tronchin appears to have put forward a further claim for 36 trees which he said he had found, and in connection with this Mr. Tronchin reports in his letter before referred to "Mr. Linnell may or may not be right, but had he informed me of his intention to continue searching for recently bled trees, I would not have allowed him to do so without Mr. Barclay and myself. I regard Mr. Linnell's action as being very unfair to me, because I did not close my investigation until he had expressed his thorough satisfaction at what I did to ascertain the true facts of the case."

I gather from this that it was not so much as casting the onus on the Consolidated to prove their right to the balata for I do not agree with Counsel's submission that because it was on their land, the possession was in them, under the circumstances set out in the evidence, but rather with the idea of settling the question as to the ownership of the balata, which induced the Commissioner to ascertain what number of trees had been bled on the land trespassed upon, and this appears to have occurred to Mr. Tronchin also, as shown by his letter, and acquiesced in by the representatives of both Companies.

I am not prepared to say that, under the circumstances, the Consolidated should not have seized the balata. Their case is a stronger one in regard to boundaries than was Garnett & Co's in Davson & Co. v. Garnett & Co., 21. 5. 1890. L.J.

Nevertheless the respondents men had possession of the balata and, as in Davson's case, there was no reason to think that possession, as regards some of it, was not a bona fide one acquired jure perceptionis; I am of opinion that the procedure adopted by the Commissioner was the one most adapted to the circumstances.

The Commissioner found that the average bullet tree yielded 4 lbs. of balata and he assessed the number of trees at 100, thereby giving the Consolidated 400 lbs. of the 1,208 lbs. seized. There is but little evidence as to the probable quantity of balata a tree will yield. The witness Moore says he is not a balata bleeder, and has never done any bleeding, but had previously worked with the B. G. Balata Company, and that 4 or 5 trees ought to give about 30 lbs. of milk. The Commissioner in his decision refers to the known average yield of a bullet tree as 4 lbs. of dried balata, and calculates his award on that basis. There is nothing before me to say this finding is unjust.

Nor do I think that the number of trees, which the Commissioner has fixed at 100 is unwarranted. The only evidence which is really good on the point, is that in Tronchin's report referring to 88 trees, and which were seen by himself and Messrs. Barclay and Linnell. The Commissioner allowed 12 more, a not illiberal increase.

I find therefore the Commissioner's decision to be right, and uphold it, but in view of what I have said as to the licences and the boundaries thereunder, I think each one should bear their own costs of this appeal.

THIS 21ST DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1913.

versus

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Canadian Reciprocity Treaty—Ordinance 6 of 1913—Regulations thereunder—Construction—Certificates of Origin—Duty of Comptroller of Customs.

HILL, J., Acting: The plaintiff claims the difference between an amount paid by him, under protest, as duty on certain flour imported by him, and the amount he contends he ought to have paid under the provisions of the Canadian Reciprocity Treaty.

By Ordinance 6 of 1913, the Comptroller of Customs was authorised to make regulations under section 10 of the Customs Ordinance, 1884, to provide for the carrying into effect of the agreement made between Canada and certain of the West Indian Colonies, including British Guiana, with regard to the reciprocal Customs duties signed at Ottawa on the 9th April, 1912, and approved and adopted by the Combined Court on 3rd July, 1912, and in such regulations he was given power to provide for the proof to be required that any goods imported into this Colony are entitled to be imported at any lower rate of duty enacted in any Customs Duties Ordinance for the time being in force in pursuance of the said reciprocal agreement, and as to the ships in which such goods may be imported, and for the forms of certificates and other documents to be used by persons importing goods entitled to be imported at such lower rates of duty as aforesaid, and generally for giving full effect to the said reciprocal agreement, and to the provisions of any Customs Duties Ordinance enacted in pursuance thereof.

Section 10 of the Customs Ordinance 1884 requires that Regulations made thereunder shall be of no force or effect until approved by the Governor and Court of Policy, and publication is to be made in the "Official Gazette."

These requirements were duly carried out and the regulations approved by the Governor and Court of Policy under date 13th May, 1913, were published in the "Official Gazette" of 21st May, 1913.

On 9th September, 1913, the plaintiff received a consignment of flour by the "s.s. Commewijne" and on attempting to pay duty at preferential rates, the Comptroller of Customs informed him he was unable to accept such as he had information the brands of flour mentioned in the certificates of origin were not of Canadian origin. The Comptroller says in his evidence he was not satisfied it had been milled and packed in Canada for export. Thereupon Mr. Cannon, under protest, paid the duty at the higher rate, and now seeks to recover the difference between that and the preferential rate of duty.

The real question is, has the Comptroller any discretion in the matter, or not, and can he, certain requirements of the regulations having been complied with by the importer, still discriminate in admitting at preferential rates or not.

The Regulations which govern this matter are:—

2. Manufactured articles shall only be admitted at preferential rates of duty upon proof being submitted that a substantial portion of the labour of the United Kingdom or Canada has entered into the production of such articles to the extent in each article of not less than one-fourth of the value thereof at the time the goods are entered for exportation with the Customs Authorities in the country of produce or manufacture.

3. All articles entitled to preference under these regulations, imported or brought into British Guiana shall be accompanied by such evidence of origin as hereinafter required, and all such articles imported or brought into British Guiana not accompanied by such evidence shall be deemed to be articles not entitled to admission at preferential rates of duty.

4. All articles entitled to preference shall be accompanied by a certificate of origin in the form set forth in Schedule "A."

5. Certificates of Origin in order to be valid must be attested to in British Countries before a Collector or other Principal Officer of Customs, Notary Public, or other Official authorised to administer oaths, and in other countries before a British or other Consul, Notary Public, or other Official authorised to administer oaths, etc.

7. When goods accompanied by certificates of origin are not in uniformity with the descriptions borne on the certificates, by reason of discrepancies, as regards the marks or numbers of the packages, or the kind, quantity, or value of the goods, they shall not be entitled to preferential treatment unless the Customs Authorities at the port of destination are satisfied as to the origin of the goods, and that the differences are solely due to error.

Regulation 2 is a requirement necessary for the satisfaction of the exporting Customs Authority.

By Regulation 3 all preferential articles require evidence of origin as "hereinafter" required, that is, as required by Regulation 4,—in form as shown in Schedule "A"—and, under attestation, as shown in Regulation 5.

These requirements have been complied with by the importer in this case.

Regulation 7 is the one over which the contestants, admittedly differ.

That Regulation the Court is asked to interpret as follows:—When goods accompanied by certificates of origin are in conformity with the description borne on the certificates and there are no discrepancies as regards the marks or numbers of the packages, or the kind, quantity, or value of the goods they shall be entitled to preferential treatment unless the Customs Authorities at the port of destination are not satisfied as to the origin of the goods.

In my opinion this cannot be done. The Regulation must be construed as written. It is framed under the Customs Ordinance which is an Ordinance imposing pecuniary burdens and must be subject to the rule of strict construction. The doubt as to country of origin arises when something requisite is different between the goods, and the description borne on the certificates of origin. Hence the necessity to satisfy the Customs authorities as to the origin of the goods and that the differences are solely due to error, but where there is no discrepancy between the goods and the certificates of origin the Comptroller cannot under the Regulation exercise a discretion.

In Regulation 7, any discrepancies as to marks, or numbers of packages, or the kind, quantity, or value of the goods refer to discrepancies where the goods and the certificates are not uniform, but where the goods and certificates are uniform and the information in the hands of the Comptroller raises doubts as to the correctness of the Certificates, he, nevertheless, under this Regulation has no discretionary power to refuse to pass the goods at preferential rates.

It would seem that the Comptroller is seeking to do something at the port of destination which might well have been done by the Customs authorities in the country of manufacture when the goods were entered for export, and which the Court cannot presume was not done.

Regulation 6 has some bearing on the consideration of the question as to the discretionary powers of the Comptroller. By that Regulation where articles entitled to preference reach British Guiana before the arrival of the certificates of origin relating to the same, it shall be competent for the Customs authorities to authorise delivery of such articles at preferential rates of duty on the security of a deposit equal in amount to the difference in duty between the preferential and general rates or on a bond being given for such amount for the due production of the necessary certificates within a prescribed period.

This Regulation with Schedule "B" and "C" tends to show the intent of and value put upon, the certificates of origin.

I do not deal with any questions arising under section 23 of Ordinance 7 of 1884, or as to the validity of notice of the Comptroller dated 10th September, 1913, as it was understood that this case was to be argued on the interpretation of Regulation 7.

I give judgment for the plaintiff with costs to which I think he is entitled.

(2.) It shall be lawful for the Governor to call upon the Bank to bring up the fund hereinbefore provided for to the value of one-fourth of their bank note issue whenever such fund may be found to have fallen below such value by reason of depreciation in the market value of such securities. SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 25TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1913.

LAM
versus RAMDIAL.

Promissary Note—Notice to admit facts—Costs.

The following judgment was delivered:—

HILL, J. (acting): Plaintiff claims $164.50 balance on a Promissary Note made by defendant in his favour.

I find as a fact, that plaintiff lent $295 to defendant, and took a note for $335. This note was on demand and according to the admission by the defendant, included interest at the rate of $18 for every $100, for six months. On this amount sums of $5, $12, $140 and $80 have been admittedly received, and calculating interest on balances at 18% the renewal note for $167 is arrived at. Nothing has been allowed for interest on amounts paid by defendant. The amount of $33 received in small amounts has not been set off by plaintiff, who explains he had advanced this amount again to defendant or his wife, but I cannot admit this in view of his entry in the memorandum book, that this amount was settled in the new note.

The defendant counter-claims for milk supplied, and for $7.20 for wages. I cannot, on the evidence, admit the claim for milk, but I think defendant is entitled to judgment for $7.20, which plaintiff admits receiving but says it was for further advances of which there is no evidence.

I give judgment for $164.50, less $33, for the plaintiff, and for defendant on the counter-claim for $7.20. The nett result is a judgment for plaintiff for $124.30 with costs, but the costs incurred by defendant in summoning witnesses to prove facts not admitted by plaintiff, on notice to admit, but admitted in Court before the hearing, must be borne by the plaintiff.

Art. 26. A special register shall be kept in the Department of Government and Justice, where a record is to be kept of the association whose existence and operation has been authorised. The Secretary of Government and Justice shall issue, by reference to this register, the certificates requested by the directors, presidents, or representatives of the associations to prove their legal existence or judicial personality.

Art. 27. Every such association shall keep a register with the name, surname, profession and domicile of each of its members, with the name of the street and number of the house and room which they inhabit, if they have any, and the number and date and place of their registration certificates. In this register the names of those having the management, government or representation of the association shall be recorded. The nomination or election of these shall be notified to the Secretary of Government and Justice within the five days following it, and an exact copy, written in the native language, of the register mentioned shall be sent to him.

Art. 28. Every such association shall keep one or more books of accounts in the national language, and in which there shall appear, under the responsibility of those who exercise administrative or directive duties, a record of the revenues and expenses of the association, the origin of the former and the use of the latter being clearly expressed. Every three months a general balance shall be made and sent to the Secretary of Government and Justice.

Art. 29. The Government and Police authorities shall be able to enter at any time into the place where an association has its domicile or holds its meetings, and shall order any meeting or re-union to be suspended forthwith in which any crime or misdemeanour is committed or being agreed upon. Should the punishable act warrant arrest for the establishment of facts, those present at the meeting shall be arrested at once, and the Secretary of Government and Justice shall be immediately advised.

Art. 30. The President of the Republic may decree the suspension of the operation of any association, setting forth clearly his reasons, when from its by-laws or the acts of its members as such sufficient grounds shall appear for considering it illegal or facts develop which constitute crimes or serious misdemeanours. Information shall be given of this action and of the facts which have necessitated the suspension of the association or of its meetings and of the names of the members or persons present who appear responsible for them, with the documents relating thereto, to the Supreme Court of Justice in order that within a period of fifteen days it may confirm or revoke the suspension with due hearing of the representative or agent of the association and the Attorney General, who may present proofs in the premises at the time of the hearing or at any time prior thereto.

Art. 31. The judicial authority issuing an order to proceed against the members of an association for cause warranting the dissolution of the society shall order at the same time the suspension of the same and shall notify the Secretary of Government and Justice of his action.

Art. 32. The Supreme Court of Justice is the only authority empowered to decree the dissolution of the associations organized in accordance with this law, and may do so at the request of the Executive or of any private or official person. Such dissolution shall be decreed in the decision in which an association is declared unlawful in accordance with the provisions of this law, or in decisions rendered in respect of crimes committed in carrying out the resolutions of the said association.

It may also be decreed in decisions handed down against one or more of its members for crimes committed through means furnished them by the association, taking into consideration in each case the nature and circumstances of the crime, the character of the means employed, and the part taken by the association in the employment of the said means and in the acts executed.

Art. 33. Once the dissolution of an association has been ordered by formal sentence, another association may not be organized under the same name, nor for the same purpose, if this purpose should have been declared unlawful. If it should not have been so found, and another association with the same name and purpose should be formed, the individuals condemned by the said decision may not form part of it.

Art. 34. The suspension shall have the effect of preventing the formation of another association, with the same name and object, of which members of the suspended society shall form a part, and shall prevent the members of the said association during the term of the suspension from meeting at the place of its meetings or anywhere else either in a hotel, restaurant, inn or lodging house under any pretext whatever. The same effect and inability, but in this case of a permanent character, shall be produced by the order of the dissolution. Persons violating this provision shall be punished by the police authorities by imprisonment of eight days and a fine of from one hundred to five hundred balboas each.

Art. 35. The Supreme Court of Justice shall notify the Executive, within five days from the date thereof, of any decisions or measures taken decreeing the dissolution or suspension of an association, or the withdrawal of such suspension.

Art. 36. The associations referred to are subject in regard to the acquisition, possession and disposal of their property in case of dissolution to the provisions of the civil laws relative to collective property.

Art. 37. The Executive is empowered to prohibit the foreigners referred to in this law from engaging in such industries as do not come up to the standards of public morals, safety, and health as laid down in Article 29 of the Constitution.

Art. 38. The Executive shall cause a record to be kept in the office of the Governors of the various Provinces showing the number of mercantile establishments, the social name under which they operate, and the personnel of each.

Art. 39. The Executive shall issue regulations governing this law within sixty days from the date of its enactment.

Art. 40. This law repeals Law 6 of 1904, Law 28 of 1909, and all other provisions extant inimical to same. Thus done at Panama, on the 24th day of March, 1913.

Article 8. The Governor of whom request is made for the permission in question shall grant it or deny it in accordance with the merit of the proof furnished. In the first case he shall indicate in the same resolution the date on which the applicant shall appear before him in person to ratify, under oath, the contents of his request and to have himself inscribed in the proper Register as an alien with right to remain in the country for an indefinite period. In the second case he will order the expulsion of the said applicant.

Article 9. In each office of the Governor there shall be opened, from and after the fifteenth day of June of this year, in charge of and under the responsibility of the Governor, the following books:—

One which shall be known as the Register of Chinese, in which shall be registered the Chinese residing in the Province who obtain permission to remain in the country in conformity with the provisions of the foregoing article.

And another which shall be called Register of Turks, Syrians and North Africans of the Turkish race, in which shall be registered the aliens of this description who obtain similar permission.

Article 10. The entries in those books shall show:—

1. The place, hour, day, month and year in which the aliens are registered that for that purpose they personally appeared;
2. The full name of the Governor and of his Secretary who make the registration;
3. The full name of the Prosecuting Attorney who took part in the same act;
4. The full name, age, whether single, married or widowed, profession or trade and domicile of the alien registered and of the person whom he brings as witness for the registration. The domicile of both shall be indicated by giving the name of the town where they are domiciled at the time of registration, showing the street and number of the houses where they reside, respectively; but if they should live at a point where the houses are not described by numbers and streets, there shall be shown the name of the respective municipal district or division and of the district to which this belongs.

5. The positive declarations with respect to the other circumstances specified in Article 4 of this Decree.

6. The personal description of the alien registered, which shall contain a physical description of such alien, with the greatest minuteness of detail and accuracy possible, endeavouring to prevent, nevertheless, those physiognomical particulars which by reason of the similarity of the inherent type of their race, do not contribute to the identification of the person whose personal description is so secured. In the event the personal description is also made in accordance with the modern system of anthropometrical identification of Bertillon there shall be set forth in the entries the corresponding measurements. A record shall be made at the same time of whether the person registered does or does not speak the national tongue.

7. The quantity and class of national revenue stamps which have been deposited for the purpose of obtaining registration.

Article 11. To the right-hand side of each entry there shall be reserved a space of seven centimetres in length by five in width for the placing of a portrait of the person registered, such portrait to be securely fastened with clasps so as not to be detachable, sealed with the impression seal of the office of the Governor upon the sheet to which affixed and authenticated, in addition, with the autograph signatures of the Governor, of the Governor's Secretary and of the Prosecuting Attorney of the Circuit.

Article 12. All of the entries of registration shall be numbered on the left-hand margin, and under the order number assigned shall be written the full name of the person to whom the registration refers.

Article 13. The books of the Registers mentioned shall be prepared under the direction of the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, who shall adopt all the precautions, measures and provisions which he may deem proper in order that they may be uniform in all of the offices of the Governors and in order to prevent forgeries, doubts and ambiguities relative to the identification of the aliens mentioned.

Article 14. In every case the books of the Registers referred to in the foregoing Articles shall be headed with an inscription showing the Province to which they belong, the number of folios which they contain, the date of such inscription or heading, which shall be signed by the Governor, the Secretary of the Governor, and the Prosecuting Attorney of the Circuit.

Article 15. The first entry or registration of each Register book shall be placed immediately after the opening inscription referred to by the foregoing Article. The other registrations shall be placed successively in the various sheets of the same book.

Article 16. The records or entries in the Registers shall be written with clear characters, without abbreviations and without erasures nor amendments of the words erroneously written. The errors or omissions which are made shall be validated in the handwriting of the same person who has written the entry at the end thereof, making the proper notations to that effect. Such cancellation or striking out of words as may be necessary shall be made in such a manner that the word stricken out can always be read, to be also validated at the time and manner stated. The dates and amounts which should appear in the entries shall always be written in letters.

Article 17. When a registration has been made, there shall immediately be made two others exactly the same, which shall be signed, after comparison, by the same persons who have signed the former, to each of which there shall be attached, in the manner indicated, a duplicate of the portrait of the person registered, sealed and signed also in the manner indicated.

Article 18. One copy of these two registrations, to which shall be affixed the national revenue stamps which are necessary in conformity with the provisions of Law 50 of 1913, shall be delivered to the alien who has been registered. The other copy shall be forwarded to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs. The copy delivered to the person registered will serve him for his personal identification and constitutes his certificate of registration or residence.

Article 19. Of each registration which is made in those Registers advice shall be furnished to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, within the next twenty-four hours, in a special official communication, even though there may have been forwarded to him a copy of the record of registration as prescribed by the foregoing article.

Article 20. Commencing with the fifteenth day of July next, the Governors shall notify the aliens mentioned in this Decree who on that date have not in due form requested the permission necessary in order to be able to remain in the territory of the Republic of the obligation placed upon them of leaving the said territory before the first day of next August, utilizing for the purpose the enumeration lists which have been forwarded by the Alcaldes.

Article 21. The Governors shall also notify, beginning with the first of August next, the aliens in question who, in spite of having duly requested such permission do not appear registered before the thirty-first of July in the proper registers, because of deficiency in proving the status which they should possess in order to be able to remain in the country or for absolute failure to submit such proof of their obligation to leave the country before the fifteenth of said month of August.

Article 22. Those who, having duly requested the said permission and submitted the proof required for that purpose, are not registered on the thirty-first day of July next because of omission or fault on their part shall also be notified that they must leave the country before the said fifteenth day of August.

Article 23. Those who have found it impossible for just causes to appear personally at the respective office for the purpose of becoming registered may be granted a reasonable time, which in no case shall exceed sixty days, in order that they may appear and go through such proceeding, provided they give security in the sum of three hundred balbas, which shall be collected in case they do not register within the period which has been granted them. After the expiration of such period they shall be irrevocably ordered to leave the territory of the Republic within the period of ten days.

Article 24. Those Chinese, Turks and Syrians, who are at the present time absent from the country, with the right to return and of remaining therein because of having been duly issued passports, shall be made to comply, within the period of thirty days from the date of their arrival, with all of the requirements prescribed by Law 50 of 1913 and by this Decree. Any such person failing to comply with those formalities shall be ordered to leave the country within the period of ten days at the latest.

Article 25. The aliens mentioned in this Decree who have been sentenced to labour on public works for violation of said Law 50 of 1913 and of this Decree or for disobeying the Order duly notified to leave the country shall be placed by the respective Governors at the disposition of the Secretary of Fomento for such purpose.

Article 26. Those aliens who are inscribed in the Registers referred to by this Decree shall be granted passports to go abroad up to the period of two years, as permitted by Article 12 of Law 50 of 1913, if they comply with the following requirements:—

1. That the request for the passport is made in writing on stamped paper of the first class.

2. That their application is accompanied by the proper certificate of residence and personal description in order that it may be retained in the office of the Governor during the period of their absence and three copies of their portrait recently taken.

3. That there be stated in said application the port of departure and the country to which proceeding.

Article 27. The passport shall be issued on stamped paper of the fourth class and shall show all of the particulars contained in the respective certificate of registration. To said passport there shall be securely affixed with clasps or fasteners so as to be not detachable one of the copies of the new portrait of the person to whom the passport is issued. Of the other two copies one shall be attached in the same manner to the certificate of registration which is to be deposited and the other shall be forwarded to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs. These new portraits shall be stamped with the seal of the office of the Governor and signed with the autograph signatures of the Governor, of his Secretary, and of the person concerned.

Article 28. The passports issued by the Governors in conformity with the preceding Articles shall be delivered to the persons interested by the Captain of the Port of departure at the time of the sailing of the vessel which carries them. The Governors shall for that purpose forward such passports to the Captain of the Port from which such persons are to sail, and this official shall place at the bottom thereof a notation showing the date of delivery made on board of the respective vessel, signed by him with his signature in full.

Article 29. Those persons to whom passports have been issued in conformity with the foregoing provisions who return to the country shall present the passport which has been issued to them to the Captain of the Port of landing. If this official shall find them to agree he shall note thereon the date of the return of the alien delivering it, shall permit the landing of such alien, and forward the original passport to the Governor who issued it.

Article 30. Upon receipt by the Governor of the passport he shall deliver to the person interested the certificate of residence and personal description and shall forward the passport to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs.

Article 31. In the left-hand margin of the registration record in the Register Book of each person who leaves the country in accordance with the formalities prescribed by this Decree there shall be made a notation showing the fact of the issuance to him of the corresponding passport and the date of its issuance. This notation shall be cancelled immediately when the Secretary of Foreign Affairs acknowledges the receipt of the said passport with the notation thereon made by the Captain of the Port who took it up.

Article 32. It is the duty of the Port Captains and the other authorities and Government officials and employees to prevent the entry into the country of the aliens mentioned in the Decree who do not exhibit the proper passport or who do not prove their identity, if such should be questioned notwithstanding the passport.

Article 33. If upon submitting such proof it should result that the alien has no right to be admitted he shall be immediately re-embarked, because he is not permitted to stay in the country under any pretext nor by means of security of any kind.

Article 34. The passports returned by the interested persons upon their return and forwarded to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs shall be burned by that official, witnessed by the Under Secretary of his office and the Attorney General of the nation. Of this fact there shall be made a detailed minute, signed by those officials, in a special book which shall be kept for that purpose in the office of the Secretary, such record to be published in the Official Gazette.

Article 35. The old certificates of registration which the aliens in question deliver to the Governors to secure their new registration in the proper Registers shall also be forwarded to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, together with duplicate of the record of the new registration. These old certificates shall also be burned up by the said Secretary in the manner stated in the preceding Article.

Article 36. The aliens mentioned in this Decree who request and obtain the necessary permission to remain in the country and who do not reside in the capital districts of the Province may comply with the provisions of Article 14 of Law 50 of 1913 by personally appearing before the Alcalde of the district in which they have their domicile and delivering to that official the respective certificate with the national revenue stamp which should be affixed thereto, when the respective Governor so authorised them for reasons which in his judgment are just. In such case, the Alcalde shall without any delay whatsoever forward the certificate and the stamp deposited to the Governor, who will return said document to the person concerned, through the same Alcalde, with the notation prescribed in the said Article of the law in question, showing thereon the manner in which the certificate was presented.

Article 37. The captains of the steamers which bring to the ports of the Republic aliens of the class mentioned in this Decree as passengers in transit to other countries shall deliver to the Captain of the Port of arrival a list of such passengers with their respective personal descriptions and a signed statement in which they affirm that such persons will pass over the Isthmus in transit. The Captains who fail to make this declaration shall be subjected to the penalties provided by Article 2 of Law 50 of 1913. They shall also be subjected to the same penalty in the case that, having made such declaration it should result that the aliens in transit have evaded or attempted to evade the prohibitions established by the said law and by this Decree.

Article 38. Any captain of a vessel or steamship upon whom penalty has been imposed for the violation of said law and who does not re-embark the immigrants nor satisfy the fines imposed within the period given him for that purpose shall not be permitted to leave the port without having complied with the mandate of the penalty. This same procedure shall be adopted and taken against the captain who has been called to answer for the violation of the said law and who should refuse to appear or evade the summons, without prejudice to the other responsibilities which he may incur for his disobedience of the orders of competent authority.

Article 39. The aliens mentioned in this Decree who have to pass in transit through the territory of the Republic shall so advise the Consul of Panama or the Consul of a friendly nation at the port of departure sufficiently in advance, so that said official may take their personal description and duly inform the Secretary of Foreign Affairs of the expected arrival in the country of the said transients, who shall remain under the immediate surveillance of the Governor of the respective Province from their arrival until they continue on their journey.

Article 40. The aliens in question who desire to visit the country for pastime or sightseeing may do so by complying with the following formalities:—

1. Obtain beforehand written permission from the Secretary of Foreign Affairs.

2. Bring a certificate of personal identification issued by the respective Panamanian diplomatic or consular representative, or in the absence of such official by any other representative of the same class of a friendly nation accredited to the country from which the visitor comes, to which certificate there shall be attached the photograph of such visitor; and

3. To give upon his arrival pledged security in the sum of three hundred balboas as a guaranty that he will not remain in the country more than three months.

Article 41. The documents referred to by the preceding Article shall be delivered to the Captain of the Port where such persons land and immediately forwarded by that official to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs.

Article 42. The security referred to in the same Article shall be returned upon presentation, cancelled by the Consul of Panama or by the Consul of a friendly nation residing at the place abroad where the interested person lands, of the passport which the Secretary of Foreign Affairs issues to such person upon leaving the country.

Article 43. The Chinese who are at the present time on the Isthmus as employees of the Chinese commercial houses here established and those who are about to come as such employees, pursuant to permission already granted in conformity with provisions enacted prior to this Decree, may remain in the country for the period for which permission has been given, without further obligation than that of personally appearing each month, from the first to the fifth, before the Governor of the Province in which they reside. After the expiration of such period they shall leave the territory of the Republic without any delay whatever. If they should not do so voluntarily they shall be subjected to the penalties established against clandestine immigrants and the owners or representatives of the commercial houses which brought them to the country as their employees shall be properly held responsible.

Article 44. The Chinese to which the foregoing Article refers may choose to remain in the country by taking advantage of the provisions of Article 6 of Law 50 of 1913 and complying with all of the formalities prescribed to that effect.

Article 45. When the holder of a certificate of registration has lost the same he may request a duplicate, which shall be issued to him if he declares under oath that he lost the original certificate, and the Governor shall actually make sure and satisfy himself of that fact by means of an investigation made for that purpose. The duplicate shall be authenticated by the Governor, the Secretary of the Governor, and the Prosecuting Attorney of the Circuit; but it requires for its complete validity the approval of the Secretary of Foreign Affairs.

Article 46. In the case of the death of any of the aliens referred to by this Decree there shall be presented to the Alcalde of whom request is made for the burial permit the certificate of residence and personal description of the deceased, which shall be forwarded to the respective Governor in order that he may cancel the same and make a record of such cancellation in the proper Register. The certificates cancelled for such reason shall be forwarded to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs to be burned in accordance with the formalities already prescribed.

Article 47. In the said Register there shall also be noted the cancellation of the certificates which lapse for any other reason, and of such fact advice with full particulars shall be furnished the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, transmitting to him the cancelled certificate, if it was obtained, for the purpose stated.

Article 48. The term "North Africans of the Turkish race" applies to all persons of Turkish origin born or domiciled in Northern Africa, regardless of what their nationality may be.

Article 49. The personal description of the aliens referred to by this Decree in accordance with the Bertillon system of anthropometrical identification shall be taken by the official physicians, in the presence of the respective Governors, at the time of making the original registration, if that should be possible, or when such aliens return to appear before those officials pursuant to the provisions of Article 14 of Law 50 of 1913. In the event the new system of identification is adopted for registration purposes, the Governors of Panama, Colon, and Bocas del Toro may appoint physicians to assist the official physicians in the taking of the proper measurements, allowing them for such service seventy-five cents of a balboa for each personal description.

Article 50. The provisions of this Decree shall not be made to apply to the children of the aliens mentioned who were born in the territory of the Republic, whatever may be their age, nor to those aliens themselves if they have secured a certificate of naturalisation issued during the period when such privilege was accorded them.

Article 51. The expense which the enforcement of the provisions of this Decree may occasion shall be charged to the Department of Foreign Affairs, Chapter 59, Article 191 of the Budget for the fiscal period in force.

Article 52. The deficiencies, shortcomings or omissions which may be observed in the enforcement of Law 50 of 1913 shall be corrected in conformity with the rules established for similar cases.

Article 53. This Decree, being regulative of the aforementioned Law 50, shall be considered to be incorporated therewith for all legal purposes. In consequence the one followed by the other shall be printed in a special edition, which shall be widely circulated among the aliens to which both enactments relate, among the national government officials and the officials of other countries upon whom it is incumbent to be acquainted therewith and among any other persons who may be specially interested in having a knowledge of its provisions.

Let it be communicated and published.

THIS 26TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1913.

GOPEE SINGH, Appellant,
versus
A. J. GILBERT, Respondent.Landlord and tenant—Special contract—Power of Judge or Magistrate to call witness—Section 90 of the Evidence Ordinance, 1893, considered.

The following judgment was delivered:—

EARNSHAW, J.: The appellant claimed from the respondent in the Court below $100 as damages for breach of contract.

The learned Magistrate found that there was no breach and gave judgment for the respondent with costs.

From that judgment this appeal is brought. It appears that the respondent let to the appellant a bed of abandoned land free of rent for six months on the condition that appellant cleaned the same and planted provisions thereon, and it was further agreed that after the expiration of six months the appellant should pay a monthly rent of two dollars for the same.

The appellant states that it was also a term of the contract that the respondent should provide drainage for the said land.

The appellant entered into possession and planted provisions.

In January, 1913, the bed of land was flooded and the appellant alleges that he suffered damage to the extent of $100 to his provisions as a result of the flood.

He says that this damage was directly caused by the omission of the respondent in breach of her contract to provide drainage.

The respondent replies to this by saying that she kept the main drainage trench in order and that appellant failed to dig his own drains. The damage, she alleges, is due to appellant's own negligence, and to an excessive rainfall which flooded all the lands in the district.

She also says that she never undertook to provide drainage.

The agreement was oral, not written, and the learned Magistrate says that he was not satisfied that the respondent made the verbal agreement as alleged, that in his opinion the appellant and his witnesses "are not truthful," and the neglect of the appellant and his co-tenants to clean their piece of the side-line dam would account for any unusual accumulation of water.

The grounds of appeal are, as is usual, numerous.

Only two deserve consideration, viz.:

1. (d.) That the decision was erroneous in point of law because it was the duty of the respondent as lessor to provide good and sufficient drainage, and that her neglect to do this constituted a breach of the contract, and

2. (a.) That it was not competent for the Magistrate to re-open the case for the defence after it had been closed by counsel . . . by calling upon the defendant to give evidence on her own behalf which she did.

At the hearing of the appeal it was contended that the duty set forth in 1 (d.) was based on the common law, and did not depend upon a special term in the contract, but in the Magistrate's Court the appellant based his claim on the breach of an alleged term in the contract. I do not think it is open to counsel to shift his ground in this way, and to try to establish on appeal a case which was never set up in the Court below, but even if that were possible, I should find that in the circumstances of this case, —i.e., the facts that the land was abandoned, that appellant had it free of rent for six months, and after that paid only a small rent,—there was a special contract between the parties which modified or took away the common law right.

As regards 2 (a) it appears from the record that after counsel for the respondent, i.e., the defendant had closed his case, the Magistrate called the respondent herself as a witness and she was examined and cross-examined.

It does not appear that counsel for the appellant made any objection at the time. He accepted the situation and exercised his right of cross-examination.

As no objection to the admissibility of this evidence was taken in the Court below, the objection cannot be taken on appeal and this reason for appeal may be dismissed on that ground alone.

But it may be useful to state that the power, conferred on a Judge or Magistrate by section 90 of the Evidence Ordinance as interpreted by section 2 thereof, to call any competent person as a witness is not limited to any particular part of the trial, and it appears to me that if the Judge or Magistrate is during the course of a trial thinking of a person who ought to or might reasonably be called as a witness by counsel, and then finds that counsel closes his case without calling the same, he must have the power to call that person as a witness. To rule otherwise would place it within the power of counsel to prevent the Judge or Magistrate acting under the section referred to.

All the reasons for appeal fail and I dismiss it with costs.

THIS 26TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1913.

JOHN LOPES and CARLOS LOPES
versus
ANTONIO GOMES.*Contract.—Goods sold and delivered.—

The following judgment was delivered:—

EARNSHAW, J.: In this case the plaintiffs as executors under the wills of Maria C. Lopes and Manoel J. Lopes, claim from the defendant two sums (1) $488.84 for goods sold and delivered to the defendant, and (2) $27 as cash paid for the defendant.

Defendant admits the claim for $27 but denies indebtedness as regards the larger item. He further says that he never bought any of the goods for which the sum of $488.84 is claimed, and that the plaintiffs did not sell or deliver the same to him.

He also pleads that if the plaintiffs sold the said goods to him they were not licensed auctioneers, and never had any authority in law to sell the said goods as alleged by them.

On the evidence I find that the goods in question were furniture and household appointments which formerly belonged to the testatrix and testator and after their deaths formed part of the estate in the hands of the executors under the wills.

It was the duty of the executors to realise this property and distribute the proceeds according to the terms of the will.

All the heirs were adults i.e. sui juris, and they arranged and agreed with the executors that the goods in question should be sold amongst themselves.

They met for this purpose and it was decided that the goods should in each case be sold to the heir who was willing to pay the highest price.

The defendant, who married a daughter of the testators, was a party to the above agreement and was present at this meeting.

The goods were then sold, and in order to discover who was willing in each case to pay the highest price, Carlos Lopes one of the executors called out the articles and sold them in each case to the highest bidder.

The defendant purchased in this way the goods for which this claim is now made.

It appears that he bid recklessly with the result that his wife complained and desired that the sale should be repudiated, and on the following morning, she on her husband's behalf told the plaintiffs that defendant would not take the goods.

The plaintiffs say that this attempt at repudiation of the sale was not pleaded, and if pleaded was too late, as the goods had not only been sold, but also delivered to the defendant at the time of the sale.

There is no doubt that the goods were sold to the defendant, and I find that the plaintiffs had authority in law to sell the goods.

The fact that Carlos Lopes in order to fix the prices adopted more or less the methods of an auctioneer does not in my opinion affect this sale in any way whatever. It was a private sale. Only the heirs were present. There was no sale by public auction.

The only question that remains is whether there was delivery in law of the goods sold.

Prima facie in law it is the duty of the buyer to take specific goods such as were sold on this occasion; and the sellers' duty is fulfilled by putting the goods at the disposal of the buyer at the place of delivery, and in the absence of any term in the contract to the contrary, the sellers' place of business is in law the place of delivery.

On the evidence in this case I find that the sellers' place of business on this occasion was the house where the goods were sold. That being so, it is in law the place of delivery of the goods.

I also find on the evidence that the sellers on selling the goods at this place, told the defendant that the goods were at his disposal.

In the way of delivery this was all that the plaintiffs could do on that occasion, and this is sufficient to constitute delivery in law. It was not their duty either generally under the law or by reason of a special term in the contract to remove the goods anywhere on the defendant's behalf.

The goods were placed at the disposal of the defendant and it was his duty to remove the same.

If it is objected to this, that the sellers had possession of the premises where the goods were, and that the defendant could not enter those premises in order to remove the goods without their permission, the answer to that is that such a contract of sale as this confers by implication on the buyer an irrevocable licence by the sellers to the buyer to enter upon the premises to remove the goods.

The plaintiffs succeed in their claim and I give judgment for them for $515.84.

THIS 27TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1913.

MEDAS, Appellant.

HEADLEY, Respondent.

Mining Ordinance, 1903—Regulations of 1905—Jumping Claims—Authority under Prospecting Licence (Regulation 93 (3) — Procedure in re Jumping. (Regulation 81)—Circumstances Entitling Jumping. (Regulation 93 (1) and (2).—)

The following judgment was delivered:—

HILL, J. (acting): This is an appeal from the decision of a Warden disallowing the jumping of three claims by the appellant under the Mining Ordinance of 1903.

Certain objections were taken, in limine, but were overruled by me. These were,

- (1.) As to the appeal being wrongly intitled.
- (2.) As to the requirements in regard to the recognisance not having been carried out.
- (3.) That the service of reasons of appeal on the respondent was bad.

With regard to

(1.) The procedure in connection with appeals from a finding of the Commissioner or Warden lies in the Limited Jurisdiction of this Court, and subject to the provisions of the Ordinance (1 of 1903), the practice and procedure is the same as though they were appeals from the decision of a Magistrate. The words "Proceedings under the Mining Regulations, 1905" coming after "In the Supreme Court of British Guiana, Limited Jurisdiction" sufficiently comply with the law.

(2.) Under section 74, Ordinance 1 of 1903, the appellant has to enter into a recognisance with at least one surety in fifty dollars, to the satisfaction of the Commissioner or Warden, conditioned for the due prosecution of the appeal and for abiding the result thereof, including the payment of all costs of the appeal and otherwise. The Commissioner accepted the recognisance in fifty dollars, and I see no reason to conclude in the absence of any information to the contrary, that that amount is insufficient to cover the costs of appeal and otherwise. See also Regulation 94 (4) of the Mining Regulations of 1905.

(3.) An applicant for a prospecting licence gives a registered address (Regulation 3 (2)), he cannot change it except he does certain things (5 (3)) and by (5 (4)) delivery of any notice or process at a registered address has the same effect as personal service. The service in this appeal was made at the registered address of the respondent, and is therefore personal service such as is required under section 75, Ordinance 1 of 1903.

Under Regulation 93 (3) no person who is not the holder of a prospecting licence or authority in accordance with Regulation 6, may jump a claim. Browne jumped the three claims as holder of an authority in accordance with Regulation 6. That Regulation says "A person on obtaining a prospecting licence may, personally or by some person authorised by him with the approval of the Commissioner or Warden in writing in Form 3 in the "First Schedule to these Regulations, prospect for and locate claims on any of the Crown lands of the colony not previously lawfully occupied or previously located or reserved, by notice published in the Gazette for the use of the Crown, or the colony, or as an Indian Reservation. Any location not made in compliance with this regulation shall be disallowed by the Commissioner."

The authority, if otherwise in order, would allow the authorised agent to "jump" a claim, and I cannot distinguish, as suggested by counsel for respondent, between the authority to "locate" as being distinct from an authority to "jump." The "locating" may include the "jumping."

Was Browne then the properly accredited agent of the appellant?

The prospecting licence issued to Ethel Ward Medas is thus endorsed "William Alexander Browne of Georgetown is authorised to prospect for Ethel Ward Medas, within the colony and to locate claims thereon, on her behalf and subject to this prospecting licence, until 5th August, 1913."

(Sgd.) J. MULLIN,

For Commissioner of Lands and Mines.
6th August, 1912.

But under Regulation, 6 Form 3 of the First Schedule to the regulations, is compulsory, and the approval of the Commissioner must be on that Form, and "any locations not made in compliance with this regulation shall be disallowed by the Commissioner." There is nothing in the licence or endorsement to show that Browne was authorised by Ethel Ward Medas to prospect for her, as coming from her.

In my opinion, the Warden was justified in taking notice of this in his finding, notwithstanding objection to the admission of the licence was not taken when the dispute was before him; further he sits to hear disputes, and not judicially, and he was right in his conclusion that Browne was not legally authorised to prospect on behalf of Miss Medas, and that the jumping of these claims was under an authority which was invalid.

I may add that had I been able to hold that Browne was legally authorised to locate for Miss Medas I would not be able to hold that the "jumping" of these claims was in accordance with the law.

The Warden found, as a fact, and had grounds for so doing, that the opposite party (respondent) made his locations in question after he had trespassed on the path or trail which the appellant claims but without permission, and that this path or trail assisted him (the opposite party) in making the three locations in dispute.

Now under Regulation 81, the holder of a prospecting licence, (and of course, a legally authorised agent) who has cut a path or trail, has its exclusive use for three months from the time he began to cut it, provided that in order to acquire and hold the right conferred by this regulation, such holder shall on beginning such path or trail post a notice in a conspicuous place on a tree, corner post, or beacon at the commencement of the path or trail, in the presence of two witnesses, in which notice there shall be stated the name of such holder, and the date on which the path or trail was begun. Provided also that such holder shall forthwith notify to the Commissioner or Warden in writing the particulars relating to the path or trail.

The last of requirements was observed by the following letter:—

"The Warden,
No. 4 District,

"Sir,—I beg most respectfully to notify you that in accordance with the Mining Regulations I have this day started a prospecting line commencing in the vicinity of Mr. Hy. Kingston, going N.W., and beg that the said line continuing on my prospecting be reserved and set aside for my exclusive use as from this date to three months after. Notice Boards of such application for exclusive use of the said trail have been posted in accordance.

"I have the honour to be
Sir,
your obedient servant,"

"Pigeon Island
15th February, 1913."

This is annotated "Received 1.3.13 at Arakaka Back. L.H.K."

1.3.13.

And the letter itself is unsigned.

I am of opinion that this letter does not comply with the Regulations, and am quite in agreement with the Warden when he says that while technicalities should not be strictly observed, undue laxity should not be encouraged, but this is something more than a mere technicality. It is a very necessary requirement to be strictly observed.

Licences were issued to Headly for claims B2,410 on 30th June, 1913, and for B2,365, and B2,366 on 23rd May, 1913, and the appellants claim to jump comes under Regulation 93 of the Regulations of 1905. That claim or notice is dated 9th June, 1913.

Regulation 93 (1) is as follows:—

"A claim for which a licence has not been issued may be jumped under the following circumstances only.

"(a) if the person locating it had trespassed on all other person's path or trail in order to locate it under Regulation "82."

I do not enumerate the other circumstances of this Regulation as they are not applicable to this case. It will be seen that this sub-Regulation would cover the claim issued under B2410 which had not been issued at the date of the claim to jump.

The other two licences were issued under date 26th May, 1913, and as the claim to jump is dated 9th June, 1913, they fall under Regulation 93 (2) which says "a claim for which a licence has been issued may be jumped under the following circumstances only (a) If the boundaries of the claim are not kept marked as required by these Regulations."

"(b.) If the person locating it has included therein a greater area than is allowed by these Regulations. Provided"

The interpretation of the word "only" is referred to in Williams et al v. Ferreira et al, L.J., 4th May, 1907, and following the decision therein on this particular point, with which I agree, Browne not being properly authorised to "locate" could not "jump" at the time he did, and hence Headley's location was good under claim B 2,410 and so were his locations under claims B 2,365 and B 2,366 for the same reason, and in addition for the reason that licences having been issued, the only grounds for "jumping" such licenced claims would be those enumerated in Regulation 93 (2) which do not apply. The note on the licences to the effect that "the licence is issued in accordance with the description of the claim given by the locator thereof, and without prejudice to the rights of any other persons in respect of the same land, and the locator takes the same, subject to the conditions that the location is as he alleges on Crown land which can legally be located under the authority of the Mining Ordinance, 1903" is not affected by the absence of opposition on the part of the appellant to the licences when advertised. She could still maintain her rights, if she had any, but in view of what has been said with regard to the want of proper authority to Browne to locate for Miss Medas, and the fatal irregularity in connection with the notice in writing relative to the cutting of the path or trail (in the legality of both of which the claim to jump rests) as well as the Regulations (93 (2) and (3)) which refer to the only grounds on which unlicenced and licenced claims can be jumped, I am of opinion that the Warden's finding was correct, and uphold it, with costs to the respondent.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 27TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1913.

ANTONIO SAMUELS

versus

P.C. 1,222, ISAAC GLASGOW.

Assault.

The following judgment was delivered:—

RAYNER, C.J.: The Court considers that the circumstances of the case justifies it in reducing the charge to one of assault, and convicts appellant upon that, and fines him $25 or one month's imprisonment with hard labour. Appellant to pay costs of appeal.

versus

Sergt.-Major 417, Wm. FRANKLIN.

Evidence.

The following judgment was delivered:—

RAYNER, C.J.: There is ample evidence upon which the Magistrate could have come to the conclusion he did, and I fail to see on the evidence how he could have come to any other conclusion than the one he did come to, namely, that the defendant stole the complainant's cow.

Appeal dismissed with costs.

KALLOO

versus

GRAY.

Embezzlement—Proof.

Hill J. (acting): This is an appeal from a conviction before the Magistrate sitting in the Georgetown Judicial District, on a charge of embezzlement.

The reasons of appeal, summarised, are that in the absence of the evidence of a certain witness named Griffith, the chain of evidence is incomplete so as to enable the Magistrate to decide as he did, but the question, to my mind, is whether the Magistrate had sufficient evidence to properly submit to himself sitting as a jury.

There is the direct evidence of Bacchus and Holder—the corroborative evidence of Miss Rose, with the documentary evidence of the results of her examination of the appellants box, and his pink sheet which indirectly confirm the evidence of both Bacchus and Holder, and I am satisfied there was such sufficient evidence.

It is suggested that there was no fraudulent appropriation of money until appellant failed to account at end of journey, but he said he placed the amount in the box at once, and this the Magistrate disbelieved. He had a box in which he should have placed the money, he did not, but put it in his pocket, and never accounted for it.

The return of Miss Rose showed that only one five cents coin fare was in the box, and that the total passengers shown by the appellant's pink sheet, and the result of the examination of his box, agreed. If Bacchus, as he no doubt did, paid two coin fares, and put one of them himself in the box, and the appellant appropriated the other, the results at the end of the journey showed this appropriation. Miss Rose's return, it is significant, was made out before she had any knowledge of anything being wrong.

I affirm the decision of the Magistrate, and dismiss the appeal with costs.

THIS 29TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1913.

MAYERS
versus DHANI.

Agreement—Purchase Money—Book of Account.

HILL, J., (actg.): The plaintiff claims from the defendant the sum of $189 balance of purchase money of certain land at La Grange. He alleges the lots purchased contained 18½ beds, that the purchase price agreed upon was at $25 per bed and that the defendant has paid $273.50 on account.

The defendant admits a purchase of land, but says it was of 18 beds at $20 per bed and that he has paid $295, leaving a balance due by him of $65, which he has tendered plaintiff but which was refused.

Plaintiff is not in the colony but a witness—Ranger at La Grange at the time—has given evidence as to the arrangement between plaintiff and defendant, which he swears was based on cash or credit. For cash the price was to be at $20 per bed; for credit $25 per bed, and the bargain was made for credit.

He, however, swears the agreement was entered into 4 or 5 years ago, but this clearly cannot be so, as the agreement must have been made somewhere in July, 1905. I am satisfied from documentary evidence that 18½ beds were sold and delivered.

A book of account has been put in which Cameron, Mayers's attorney, swears is the book of account containing the transactions re La Grange—kept in the ordinary course of plaintiff's business with La Grange, and which he has had in his possession since Mayers left the colony. This book was admitted in evidence, no objection being made, but when Mootoo, an ex-assistant book-keeper, was being examined for the defence he stated that he had made some of the original entries in it, that the first entry relative to the transaction with Dhani in July 1905 was in his handwriting and made from some other book by Mayers's instructions. Thereupon counsel for defendant contended that it should not be accepted in evidence, but I cannot see, even granting that there was originally some other means of account, that this can remove the present book from outside the category of a book of account, kept in the course of plaintiff's business, with a reasonable degree of regularity.

The entry in this book shows that the purchase price was $25 per bed.

For the defence Dhani swears the arrangement was for $20 per bed on his buying the whole field 18. Mootoo corroborates, and so does Kowlessur, as to the conversation at the time.

Their version, however, is discredited by the fact that, while it is clear the agreement was made in July 1905, Mootoo was never on the estate before September, 1905, and could not have been present at any conversation, and therefore when defendant and Kowlessur both swear he was present, they must necessarily be not speaking the truth.

On the receipt given to Dhani by Mayers for $150, and on back of which is a further receipt for $145, there are pencil memoranda which show calculations relative to 18½ beds at $25 per bed. Dhani swears that they were made by Mayers at the time he tendered the final balance of $65 but I am not prepared, in view of the doubts I have as to the reliability of his evidence, to accept this. If they were made before, as appears likely, they are corroborative of plaintiff's case.

Finally, there is Cameron's evidence that the reason given to him by defendant for disputing the claim was that he did not see why he should pay $25 a bed, while others paid $20.

I find therefore that plaintiff sold to defendant 18½ beds at $25 per bed, i.e., for $462.50, and has received $295 leaving a balance due of $167.50.

I cannot appropriate $21.50 of this amount of $295 to the payment of transport fees, as I have nothing before me in connection with this.

I give judgment for plaintiff for $167.50 with costs.

All the charges and expenses incurred by a Local Authority in carrying out any of the acts of taking down, rebuilding, repairing or otherwise securing any house, building, fence or wall as the case may be and as provided to be done aforesaid, shall be recoverable by parate or summary execution against the lot or land with the buildings, if any, thereon, or against such house or house and premises; and the process shall be at the instance and in the name of the Local Authority of the Urban, Village or Country District, as the case may be.

(2.) If any such house, building, fence or wall as aforesaid, or any part of the same be pulled down by virtue of the powers aforesaid, the Local Authority may sell the materials thereof, or so much of the same as shall be pulled down, and apply the proceeds of such sale in payment of the expenses incurred in respect of such house, building, fence or wall; and the Local Authority shall restore any overplus arising from such sale to the owner of such house, building, fence or wall, on demand; nevertheless, the Local Authority although they sell such materials for the purposes aforesaid, shall have the same remedies for compelling the payment of so much of the said expenses as may remain due after the application of the proceeds of such sale as are hereinbefore given to them for compelling the payment of the whole of the said expenses.

Officer of Local Authority may recover penalties if authorized in writing.

16. Any proceedings by any Local Authority for the recovery of any penalty under the Principal Ordinance or under this or any other amending Ordinance may be taken by any officer of the said Local Authority if duly authorized in writing by the Chairman of the Local Authority, either generally or in respect of any particular offence, and any such authorization may be cancelled at any time by writing under the hand of the Chairman.

Local Government Board may forbid milk being removed from any place.

17.—(1.) When in the opinion of the Board the preservation of the public health requires it, the Board may order that no milk shall be taken out of or removed from any part of the colony specified in such order.

(2.) Every such order shall specify the limits of the area to which it applies and shall remain in force until it is revoked.

(3.) Every such order and the revocation of every such order shall be made by a resolution of the Board and shall be under its seal, and shall be published in the "Gazette."

(4.) Every person who removes any milk from any such area, or who sells any milk which has been removed from such area shall on summary conviction thereof be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars.

versus

THE BOERASIRIE COMMISSIONERS.

Boerasirie Commissioners—Maintenance of Dam—Right of owner of land to have koker thereon—Trespass by Commissioners.

The following judgment was delivered :

EARNSHAW, J.—The plaintiff claims from the defendants the sum of $250 for damages, being $150 special damages in connection with the removal of a koker, and $100 general damages for cultivation.

The plaintiff is the legal owner of and since 1903 has been in legal possession of a tract of land 25 rods wide and 750 rods deep, part of Plantation Orangestein.

The defendants are a body constituted under Ordinance 7 of 1889 for the purpose of conserving and distributing the waters of the Boerasirie Creek.

By section 8 of Ordinance 7 of 1889 the defendants were empowered to construct a "dam from Philadelphia to the rising ground aback of the said plantation."

They never constructed the said dam and after a lapse of sixteen or seventeen years they agreed with the various owners of the lands affected by their scheme that instead of constructing the aforesaid dam they would raise and strengthen the dams already existing on the estates.

These dams, including the dam on Plantation Orangestein, were on the lands of the various owners, and belonged to them.

The Boerasirie Commissioners could not enter on the said lands or do anything to the said dams without the permission of the owners. The permission was given.

The dam of the plaintiff was on her lands at a point about 600 rods deep. She thus had land aback of the dam about 150 rods deep.

The plaintiff and her predecessors in title had at the base of her dam a koker by which water could be distributed on the land from the savannah aback including her own 150 rods.

This koker—which may be called the original koker—appears to have been a hollowed tree, but it served its purpose.

I find that when the plaintiff gave permission to the defendants to raise and strengthen her dam she reserved her right to have a koker at the place where the original koker was.

A new koker was accordingly provided by her and placed at the base of the dam under the supervision of the servants of the defendants.

This koker was constructed of four greenheart planks each one foot wide, and made square, thus allowing when open water to flow through an opening about ten inches square.

Sunnicherry the plaintiff used this koker for the purpose of irrigation, and according to the evidence, she had a flourishing rice farm so irrigated. The new koker was put in and the dam strengthened and raised some time about 1906.

At this time the defendants had no rights or powers as regards this dam outside their agreement with the owner. But in November, 1910, an order was made by the Governor-in-Council that the Boerasirie Commissioners shall maintain a continuous dam at the back of all the plantations from Good Hope to Mora along the line shown on plan No. 1,549.

This continuous dam is simply the aggregation of all the privately owned dams on the various plantations from Good Hope to Mora including Orangestein, which were raised and strengthened by the defendants under their agreement with the owners.

The order purports to have been made under section 17 of Ordinance 7 of 1889, which provides inter alia that the Governor-in-Council may "order the Commissioners to execute or refrain from executing any work, or to alter or remove any work previously executed."

In this way some statutory sanction for this raised and strengthened dam was four years after beginning the work apparently acquired.

The order did not, however, deprive the owners of the lands of any rights which they then had in connection with the dams.

Late in September or early in October, 1912, Thomas Trotman, the Secretary of the Commissioners and the Superintendent of the Conservancy, ordered the servants of the defendants to remove the plaintiff's koker from the dam and make the dam at that place solid; and this was done notwithstanding the strong objection of the plaintiff at the time.

The koker was removed and thrown aside on plaintiff's land. Her land was entered upon for this purpose, and the result was that she was deprived of water for irrigation purposes.

The crop of rice which was then growing was damaged, and the water having been cut off, the plaintiff has not grown the usual crop or crops of rice this year.

These are the damages complained of.

In the absence of any legal right to act as above described, the defendants certainly committed a trespass for which they are liable in damages.

I cannot find that the defendants had any legal right to remove the koker.

Strange to say the defendants in their statement of defence say their acts were authorised by an Order made by the Governor-in-Council dated 1st November, 1912, but on the Court pointing out that this order was not made until after the commission of the trespass this contention was abandoned.

I have read the said order and find that there is nothing retrospective about it, and I also hold that the power there given to the defendants "to dig out and re-fill with well rammed clay all weak places and holes temporarily stopped" would not, even if given before the commission of the acts complained of, have authorised or legalised the removal of the plaintiff's koker.

I cannot see any defence to the claim. Counsel for the defendants asked me, in the event of judgment for the plaintiff to give to them the opportunity of replacing the koker themselves.

On the evidence I find that $50 is a sufficient sum to allow for replacing the koker and I fix the special damages at that amount.

The plaintiff claim $100 general damages for loss of cultivation. On the evidence I think $70 is a reasonable amount to allow under that head.

I therefore give judgment for the plaintiff for $120 damages with costs, the damages to be reduced to $70 if the defendants replace the koker in a proper state of repair within one month from date of judgment.

Execution accordingly to be stayed one month for that purpose.

RAMDASS

McNICHOL.

Specific performance of lease. Letters of Decree obtained by a purchaser subsequent to agreement of lease is no bar to the granting of specific performance of lease where purchaser is not an innocent purchaser for value.

The following judgment was delivered:—

EARNSHAW, J.: This case forcibly reminded me of a remark made quite recently by an eminent judge in England. He said "I shall strive to do justice, and my only opponent is the law."

It is a commonplace of political philosophy that law should be the servant of justice, not its master, and judges have said that one should be "astute" to discover reasons for securing the supremacy of justice.

This is of course an ideal, or standard at which one should aim.

It is not always attainable.

If it were, it would no longer remain the ideal as compared with the practical.

One reason why the administration of strict justice is not always possible, lies in the fact that most laws lay down general rules, and contemplate the universal. They do not and cannot as laws take into account the individual, or the particular circumstances which in some cases make the application of the general rule unjust.

In order to make good this defect and so to prevent injustice, cases are often minutely distinguished from each other with the result that there is often in the mind of the public a sense or feeling that the law is very uncertain.

This uncertainty is a fact and was commented on by Sir J. Macdonell in his recent annual review of the administration of justice in England.

But as the greatest master in political philosophy has said law is not a rule made of lead which can be twisted and turned and so applied to any unevenness or exception which may arise.

Lord Justice A. L. Smith once gave some practical advice on the administration of justice which deserves repetition. He told a body of lawyers that a lawyer's first aim when consulted by a client should be to grasp the facts thoroughly, then consider without recourse to authorities what in the light of sound commonsense and justice should be the proper decision. Having done that he was then to turn to the law and search for authorities which would support the conclusion at which he had previously arrived.

He added that if he found that the law was against his view, he would find in the majority of cases some good reason on the side of the law.

But as another Judge once quoted "passons au deluge," and following this advice I will now set forth the facts as I find them in this case.

As long ago as 1894 the plaintiff rented from Patty McNichol, the mother of defendant, 15 rods of land on half lot No. 1, Melville village, Wakenaam.

It is quite clear that Patty McNichol was then and until her death the owner of the said half-lot of land.

The plaintiff continued to rent the same without more until 1910 when one W. A. Downey, since deceased, purported to sell the land in question to the plaintiff for fifty-five dollars. Downey was a family connection of Patty McNichol and lived in the same yard.

The evidence shows that he was the illegitimate son of her father by a woman other than her mother.

In pursuance of his agreement with Downey the plaintiff paid to him $32 of the $55, the price agreed upon, the date of this receipt being the 9th December, 1910.

Now Downey had no right whatever to the land which he purported to sell, Patty McNichol being as I have said the sole owner. The sale by Downey was therefore bad.

According to the evidence of one Roberts a druggist, Patty McNichol not only knew of this sale by Downey, but said at the time that "Downey had a portion of the land as his property and he could sell that."

In this way—it may have been in ignorance—Patty McNichol aided and abetted Downey in the purported sale and assisted him in getting the $32 from the plaintiff.

When the real facts came to the knowledge of the plaintiff, he as Downey and Patty McNichol knew contemplated taking proceedings against Downey which might have led to the imprisonment of the latter.

Then in order to save Downey, and possibly herself from further trouble Patty McNichol made the following agreement with the plaintiff:—

Melville Village,
Wakenaam,
16th January, 1911.

"I the undersigned hereby lease to Ramdass a coolie immigrant of Plantation Marionville, Wakenaam, thirteen rods of land situated on $\frac{1}{2}$ lot No. 1 of Melville Village, Wakenaam, for a term of five years at a rental of seven dollars per annum, that such rental (sic) shall not be owing or payable until the sum of thirty-two dollars have (sic) been deducted for value received.

In case of his death before the time expires his heirs will be in possession."

This agreement is properly signed, witnessed and stamped.

Under it the plaintiff had a right to occupy and enjoy the land for five years on paying a sum of three dollars as part of the rent for the fifth year. In this way he was to recover his $32. Patty McNichol died on the 3rd October, 1911.

She died intestate and she left three legitimate children, viz., Alice McNichol, the defendant, Theodore McNichol and Mrs. Dublin.

As heirs ab intestata they became the owners of the land in question, subject to the lease or agreement afore-mentioned in favour of the plaintiff.

But the defendant in fraud of the plaintiff, and apparently in fraud of her brother and sister who were away, allowed the land to be sold in 1912, at execution sale for the village rates amounting to 60 cents only, and purchased the same for the small sum of $3.60.

She has since procured Letters of Decree for the said property in her name.

The Letters of Decree are dated 30th October, 1912, and seven days afterwards the defendant gave to the plaintiff the following notice:—

"I hereby give you notice and you are to [take notice to remove your houses from my land (lot A. and

C. Melville) and to give up the possession of the said land within one calendar month from date of this notice."

The plaintiff's reply to that notice is this action in which inter alia he asks that the defendant should make in his favour a good and valid lease of the said lands on the same terms and conditions as made between him and her mother on the 16th January, 1911.

He is only asking for what in justice is due to him.

But the defendant tries to take advantage of her own wrong and relies on the law for assistance in defeating justice.

It is objected on her behalf,—and prima facie the objections are sound—that the plaintiff should have brought this action against the three heirs of Patty McNichol, who are the defendant herself, Theodore McNichol and Mrs. Dublin, and not against the defendant alone. In ordinary circumstances this objection would be fatal; but in this case the defendant by her own wrong has made herself the sole legal owner of the land in question, and as long as the Letters of Decree stand, she alone can grant or be made to grant a lease of the land as prayed.

The action is therefore rightly brought against the present defendant alone.

The plaintiff could not have sought the same relief from the other two heirs.

The action would in England have been brought in the Chancery Division where even before the fusion of law and equity, equitable principles would have been applied.

This Court can apply the same principles of equity one of which is that no one should be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong, and I apply that principle to this case.

The other plea on which the defendant relies is that the Letters of Decree which she has acquired annul and make void "all claims, demands or mortgages which may have been on the aforesaid property before the date of the execution sale," and that as the lease or agreement with the plaintiff constitutes such a claim on the property, this is annulled or made void by the Letters of Decree.

If the purchaser, i.e., the defendant, were an innocent purchaser for value of the property this objection might be upheld. But she is far from being an innocent purchaser, and she certainly did not pay its value. She acquired it for the almost nominal sum of of $3.60. The Court can under the circumstances go behind the Letters of Decree, and prevent the holder thereof from reaping the benefit of her own fraud.

Again the equitable principle prevails.

There will accordingly be judgment for the plaintiff with costs and the defendant is ordered to make a valid lease in favour of the plaintiff on the terms set forth in the agreement made with defendant's mother and dated January 16th, 1911.

VINTON,

versus

ANDREW.

*Mining Ordinance 1903, and Regulations.
Claim jumping. Power and position of Commissioner or Warden when dealing with disputes.*

The following judgment was delivered:—

KARNSHAW, J.: This is an appeal from the decision of a Warden under the provisions of the Mining Ordinance 1903, and the Mining Regulations, 1906.

The appellant claimed to jump certain claims held by the respondent on the ground that the boundary line had not been kept open and marked as required by clauses 30 and 33 of the regulations.

The Warden found in favour of the appellant on the facts and said in his decision "I am satisfied . . . that the outer boundary lines of these claims were not opened and marked as required by clauses 30 and 33 of the Mining Regulations on the 13th January, 1913, and that the claims were then open to be jumped." But he holds that under clause 93 of the regulations which reads as follows:—

"No person who is not the holder of a prospecting licence or authority in accordance with Regulation 6 may jump a claim," that as the appellant had given an authority to one Stephenson to prospect and locate claims on her behalf, she had lost the right to jump a claim for herself. On that ground he dismissed the claim and disallowed the jump.

The Warden says "it is clearly intended by the regulations that a prospecting licence shall empower only one person to act at any one time under it."

I hesitate to differ from an officer whose sole work it is to consider and enforce the Mining Ordinance and the Regulations thereunder, but I do not see that the principal when she authorised her agent to prospect and locate claims for her divested herself of her right as the holder of the licence to jump a claim on information received from her agent.

Under clause 93 (3), I hold that either the holder of the prospecting licence or her duly authorised agent might jump.

But there were other reasons argued before the Warden on behalf of the respondent which he has not considered in his decision.

One is that the proceedings were bad because the claims in question were the subject of a jumping claim of J. Ellis at the time the present proceedings were instituted, and the other is that the appellant under an agreement dated May 31st, 1912, by which she acquired an option to purchase the claims was herself bound to keep the boundary open and the tablets up, and that if the lines were not open or boundaries marked on January 13th, 1913, this state of affairs was due to appellant's own negligence.

Both these contentions are fatal to the appellant's claim.

The jumping claim of J. Ellis aforementioned was in reality the claim of the appellant herself. Ellis was only her agent. The proceedings thereunder dealt with the present claims. They were against the same party, viz., the respondent, and appellant should either by herself or through her agent have withdrawn that jumping claim, before instituting the present claim.

These proceedings should have been quashed on that ground.

It is true too that from May 31st, 1912, until October 31st, 1912, the appellant under the agreement aforementioned with the respondent undertook to keep the lines open and the tablets up.

The evidence satisfies me that she did not keep the lines open or the tablets up. It is proved that if she had done so up to October 31st the lines would have been open and properly marked at the time they were found not open by her agent.

In making this claim she is relying on and trying to take advantage of a state of affairs due to her own negligence.

This Court will not assist her in this course.

The above is sufficient to conclude this case.

The other grounds of appeal hinge on the action of the Warden in deciding the case on a point which was not raised or argued by the parties at the hearing. On this I need only say that the Warden sits not as a Judge or Magistrate, but rather as an arbitrator. Moreover, his duties include not only the settlement of claims but also as an Officer of the Mines and Forests Department the enforcement of the Mining Regulations generally and in the performance of the latter he can of his own motion at any time before delivering decision raise any question and decide on the same.

He is said to deal with "disputes" not actions or suits. Where, however, an appeal is brought, the Judge is bound by "the practice and procedure for the time being in force in the Court in respect of appeals from the decisions of Magistrates." (See Mining Ordinance, 1903, Section 73.)

This appeal is dismissed with costs both here and before the Warden.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

THIS 3RD DAY OF DECEMBER, 1913.

versus PARRATT.

Opposition to transport—Grounds of opposition—Liquidated claim.

The plaintiff in his statement of claim alleged that D. A. Peters lent him and one Ledoux $1,200 for which a promissory note was given. At the same time the plaintiff and Ledoux deposited with Peters certain shares as collateral security for the loan. Subsequently $1,000 of this loan was paid off and another promissory note was made for $3,371, being the balance and interest remaining due on the loan. Plaintiff further alleged that this second note was fully paid off, but that Peters had refused to hand over the shares and had sold them and retained the proceeds. Peters died, and his executors advertised transport of certain property belonging to his estate, and the plaintiff thereupon opposed the transport on the ground that the defendant must first satisfy his claim in respect of the shares, and then brought this action to have his opposition declared good, just and well-founded, and claimed payment of the marketable value of the shares at the time they were sold by Peters, together with certain dividends on them, less any amount which might be found to be due by the plaintiff on the second promissory note.

De Freitas, K.C. (Humphrys with him) for the defendant took a preliminary objection that the claim was one for an unliquidated demand, and that the law only allows a transport to be opposed in respect of a liquidated claim, and that therefore this action did not lie. Administrator General v. Willems ([1892] 2 B.G. Law Reps. 130.)

P. N. Browne for plaintiff contended that the claim was for a liquidated sum and that the circumstances showed that a trust was created in respect of the shares. Any uncertainty as to the amount due could be cleared up by evidence and the exact amount ascertained. The claim was similar to one on a quantum meruit, which is a liquidated demand. Lagos v. Gunwaldt. ([1910] 1 K.B. 41)

De Freitas, K.C., not called on to reply.

Cur. adv. vult.

RAYNER, C.J.: We are of opinion that this action cannot be maintained. The remedy of opposing the passing of a transport merely because the vendor of the property owes the opposer a debt is an extraordinary remedy peculiar to Roman-Dutch law, and does not obtain in England, and we think it should be strictly limited to the cases to which it has been held to apply, and should not be extended to any cases outside of them. In the case of the Administrator General v. Willems (1892, 2 B.G. Law Reps. 131) it was held by the Full Court that opposition only lies for a liquidated demand and not for an unascertained claim. In this case the claim is clearly for an unliquidated demand. To follow the words used by the learned editors of the "Yearly Practice" (1914, Vol. 1, p. 16) as to what is a "liquidated demand," is the amount here "a matter only of calculation to be made from fixed data, so that any two people working it correctly must arrive at the same result?" I do not think so. I do not think the claim here is for a liquidated demand, and therefore the plaintiff could not oppose the transport of this property. In so deciding we do not bar the plaintiff from claiming in another action whatever he alleges to be due to him in respect of the transactions between himself and Peters; we decide only that he cannot for such a claim prevent the defendant from selling Peters' property. The opposition of the plaintiff must therefore be declared not well-founded and the action dismissed with costs, but the plaintiff is at liberty to bring a fresh action in respect of his claim.

KARNSHAW, J.: This is an action by way of opposition to the passing of a transport.

The defendant as one of the executors under the last will of D. A. Peters advertised the proposed transport of certain lands, part of the testator's estate.

The plaintiff opposes, not on any ground affecting the title or ownership of the lands about to be transported but on the ground that he has a claim against the general estate of the testator as a result of certain transactions which took place in the lifetime of the testator between himself, one T. H. Ledoux, and the testator.

For the defendant counsel took a preliminary objection which he had pleaded, and which reads as follows:—"That the plaintiff's claim discloses no valid grounds in law to entitle the plaintiff to oppose the transport referred to in the plaintiff's ground of opposition."

Before the plaintiff can succeed in an action of this nature he must show that he has (See Part II, Order II. r. 2. of the Rules of Court) a "right to oppose."

Defendant contends that this right is limited, and does not include "an opposition founded on the opposer having a non-liquid claim against the owner of the property proposed to be sold."

He referred in support of his contention to the case of the Administrator General v. Willems et al, Law Reports British Guiana N.S., Vol. II, p. 134.

It is clear on a consideration of the pleadings in this case that the claim of the plaintiff herein is non-liquid. It certainly could not be made the subject of a special indorsement as a liquidated demand under the provisions of Part I Order IV., r. 6 of the Rules of Court.

I am satisfied that the right to oppose the passing of a transport does not cover a claim of this nature.

As Chalmers C.J., said in his judgment in the case referred to "the faculty to oppose is founded in a right to or in the property or a nexus upon it."

This right has been extended so that it covers a claim to oppose on the ground that the person transporting or mortgaging owes a debt to the opposer. But this debt must be liquidated, i.e., clear and certain, not unliquidated, or such that questions may arise whether anything, and if anything how much is due.

The pleadings in this case clearly show such questions have arisen and still remain for determination between the parties.

The right to oppose on the ground of a debt due is in my opinion "confined to liquidated or liquid claims."

The plaintiff's claim is not of this nature and he therefore has no right to oppose. His opposition must therefore be declared bad and ill-founded.

There must be judgment for the defendant with costs, but the plaintiff must be at liberty to bring a fresh action by writ of summons in the ordinary way."

HILL, J. (Acting): In my opinion this is a personal claim of a non-liquid nature. Opposition will not lie in respect of a non-liquid claim. This was the decision virtually in Administrator General v. Willems, and still holds good.

The objection must prevail.

In view of the Royal decree No. 89 of the 31st January, 1909, approving the table of countervailing duties on sugar imported from certain foreign countries, and of the Royal decrees Nos. 706 of the 8th October, 1909, and 378 of the 28th March, 1912, modifying the above table;

Seeing that the said countervailing duties were imposed under the international Convention of the 5th March, 1902, regarding the fiscal treatment of sugar and the additional Act thereto of the 23rd August, 1907, which were brought into force respectively by the laws Nos. 43 of the 12th February, 1903, and 350 of the 30th June, 1908;

Ownership of building.—Question of fact.

The following judgment was delivered:—

EARNSHAW, J.: In this case the only question for decision is to which of the two, plaintiff or defendant, does the building, the subject of this action, belong. The answer depends not so much on law as on fact. Many witnesses have been called and many documents put in and I have arrived at the conclusion that the evidence is overwhelmingly in favour of the case set up by the defendant. I do not propose to discuss the evidence in a written judgment. It would be useless. I find for the defendant. The shop and kitchen belong to her and I declare the opposition of the plaintiff to be unjust, illegal and unfounded with costs.

GEORGETOWN, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 20TH, 1913.

Government Notice.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,
16th December, 1913.

573.

HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following Reports by the Government Economic Biologist on the prevalence of biting flies.

By Command,

C. CLEMENTI,
Government Secretary.

DIRECTOR, SCIENCE AND AGRICULTURE.

Sir,—I have the honour to submit the following report on the prevalence of biting flies, condition of mule stables and yards with regard to the breeding-places of such insects, and the preventive measures carried out for their suppression by the authorities of the various estates inspected on November 16th, 1913.

Owing to the persistent occurrence amongst mules on a number of sugar estates of the disease known as Mal de caderas, the Veterinary Committee of the Board of Agriculture deemed it advisable to issue special instructions for the control of biting flies which are suspected to be the vectors of this disease, and the previously mentioned inspections were made with a view to determining the efficacy of the preventive measures as practised on each estate.

The following estates were visited :—Cane Grove, Hope, Cove and John, Enmore, Lusignan, Mon Repos, La Bonne Intention, Vryheid's Lust and Ogle.

In each case the inspection was made of the mules themselves, the stables, and the stable yards.

From the first it became quite evident that real progress, inspired by a just dread of the disease, had been made. The stables had been thoroughly cleaned and treated with a mixture of lime-wash and carbolic acid, and the floors when not constructed of concrete (the usual state of affairs) were being kept in a sanitary state; in some cases better ventilation had been provided. The stable fly (Stomoxys calcitrans, L.) was observed to be present in all cases though with one exception (Plantation Cane Grove where they were swarming) not in any great numbers.

In every instance the stable yards were observed to be in a most or less insanitary condition, heaps of stale dung and straw (the chosen breeding-place of the stable fly) being everywhere conspicuous. Instructions were consequently given for the removal of such heaps or for their treatment with chloride of lime.

The published instructions for washing the mules with a mixture consisting of soft soap, kerosine, water and fish oil to prevent the attacks of flies had in all cases been carried out, but it was found necessary to urge its more thorough and regular application.

The following is a list, in order of prevalence, of the biting flies observed to be attacking the mules during these visits.

Tabanus trilineatus. Latr.

Tabanus semisordidus. Walk.

There are however previous records of five other different species which will attack mules in all parts of the colony.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

G. E. BODKIN,

Government Economic Biologist.

DIRECTOR, SCIENCE AND AGRICULTURE.

Sir,—I have the honour to submit the following report on the prevalence of biting flies, condition of mule stables and yards with regard to the breeding places of such insects, and the preventive measures carried out by the authorities of the various Berbice Estates inspected on the 18th and 25th of November, 1913.

The following estates were visited:—Skeldon, Springlands, Providence, Blairmont and Bath.

In all cases every precaution was being taken both to prevent the attacks of biting flies and to destroy their breeding-places. In no cases were these flies present in any great numbers, but at Plantation Skeldon a number of mules in an advanced stage of the disease had been 'isolated' at the back of the estate and were at the time of our visit being attacked by the stable fly (Stomoxys Calcitrans) and several species of cow-flies or Tabanidae. Under these circumstances it would appear that this so-called isolation is of but little use (supposing that Mal de caderas is transmitted by the agency of blood-sucking flies) and it would be better to destroy the animals.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

G. E. BODKIN,

Government Economic Biologist.

HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following despatch with its enclosures from the Secretary of State for the Colonies:—

CIRCULAR.

Downing Street,
9th October, 1913.

Sir,—With reference to my Circular despatches of the 20th of May, 1912, 6th November, 1912, and 22nd of March last, I have the honour to inform you that the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries have decided to withdraw the provisions of Chapter I (Importation) of the Horses (Importation and Transit) Order of 1912 and to substitute new provisions, to come into operation on the 1st instant.

2. I enclose for your information copies of the new Order issued by the Board, entitled the Horses (Importation and Transit) Order of 1913, together with a copy of a memorandum describing its effects.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient, humble servant,

DISEASES OF ANIMALS ACTS, 1894 TO 1911.

HORSES (IMPORTATION AND TRANSIT) ORDER OF 1913.

This Order revokes the existing Orders dealing with the Importation and Transit of horses, asses, and mules, and re-enacts those Orders with the following amendment:—

IMPORTATION—CHAPTER I.

Horses, asses, and mules brought to Great Britain from abroad are required by the new Order to be accompanied by a veterinary certificate of freedom from symptoms of glanders (including farcy), epizootic lymphangitis, ulcerative lymphangitis, dourine, horse-pox, sarcoptic mange, psoroptic mange, influenza, ringworm, or strangles, instead of, as at present, from symptoms of glanders (including farcy) only.

The existing special provisions as to landing at Leith and Newcastle-upon-Tyne are continued.

The provisions of Chapter I of the Horses (Importation and Transit) Order of 1912, which, in effect, required horses, asses, or mules, brought from abroad to be either accompanied by a Licence of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries or to be examined at a place of detention at the port of landing but which had, for various reasons been postponed from time to time, and have not come into operation, are entirely withdrawn.

The new Order will come into force on the 1st October, 1913.

(iv.) During movement to the shed, horses, asses and mules shall be kept separate from all horses, asses or mules not landed under this provision.

(2.) If any horse, ass or mule in the shed is diseased or suspected within the meaning of any Order of the Board, the Local Authority of the District shall proceed in accordance with the provisions of that Order, except that any horse, ass or mule which is not diseased or suspected may be moved with the written permission of an Inspector of the Local Authority of the District to a vessel in the Leith Docks or Harbour, or in the River Tyne, as the case may be, for exportation; and also except that no compensation shall be payable in respect of any horse, ass or mule slaughtered by the Local Authority.

(viii.) Every part of the vessel where horses, asses or mules are carried shall be provided with one or more passage-ways leading from the hatchway or entrance to such part of the vessel and giving frontal access to each box or stall containing a horse, ass or mule. Each passage-way shall be of a minimum width of one foot and six inches, and be kept free of obstruction.

The foregoing provisions of this Article shall not extend to the carriage of horses, asses or mules on a vessel across an arm of the sea or over any ferry, or on a river, canal, or other inland water, but the fittings of the vessel shall be such as to protect as far as practicable the animals so carried from injury and unnecessary suffering, and as far as practicable provision shall be made in order to prevent slipping by strewing the deck with sand or other suitable substance.

(Approaches, Gangways, and other Apparatus.)

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH
GUIANA.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

THIS 5TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1913.

CHARLOTTE LEWIS as the guardian ad litem of the minor ADRIANA CATHERINA VAN BATENBURG GUNNING.

versus

JOSE VIEIRA CAETANO.

Liability of owner of house for injuries sustained by tenant by reason of want of repair—Right of illegitimate child to recover for loss of mother—Measure of damages—Public Trustee to administer sum awarded as damages to minor.

The plaintiff, an illegitimate child of two years old, sued defendant for loss of her mother Marion Lewis. Marion Lewis was tenant of a house owned by defendant. The kitchen floor fell through in consequence of the beams supporting it becoming rotten, and Marion Lewis who was on it at the time was injured and subsequently died as the result of the injuries. Evidence was given by the plaintiff that one Gunning, who was plaintiff's father, and who paid the rent of the house, had told defendant of the defective state of the kitchen and also that Marion Lewis had informed defendant's son, who collected the rent for his father, that it needed repairing. Plaintiff claimed $4,000 damages in the General Jurisdiction of the Court.

P. N. Browne for plaintiff, in opening the plaintiff's case, cited the following South African cases to show that the action lay:

Watson v. Geard. (3 E. Districts Court Reps. 417.)

Tee v. McIlwraith. (19 E. Districts Court Reps. 282.)

Alexander v. Armstrong. (9 Buchanan's Reps. 233, 238.)

Nannucci v. Wilson (11 Juta's Reps. 240.)

As to the right of compensation in respect of the death of a person injured he cited Burke v. British Guiana Gold Mines (12th March, 1909.)

He referred to Ordinance, 13 of 1907 s. 219.

De Freitas, K.C., for defendant, at the close of plaintiff's case, submitted that plaintiff had made out no case:

(1.) Because under Roman-Dutch law an action would arise ex delicto only and not from a contractual relation; here action is for injury arising from breach of contract for not repairing premises.

Sampson's Translation of Voet, Bk 9, p. 318.

Nathan's S. African Law. Vol. 3, p. 1,570.

Union (Government v. Warneke. (S. African L. Reps. 1911. App. Div. 657.)

Sfeenkamp v. Juraanse. (Transvaal L. Reps. 1907, 980.)

Edwards v. Hyde. (Transvaal L. Reps 1903, 381.)

The statutory duty imposed on a landlord under Ordinance 13 of 1907, s. 219 of keeping the premises let in a condition "reasonably fit for habitation" applies only to sanitary matters and not to the structure of the building. Hewick J. in Chabral v. Wharton. (Appellate Jurisdiction, 10 August, 1911.)

Further it was not pleaded.

P. N. Browne for plaintiff contended that the action lay for injuries arising out of a breach of contract as well as ex delicto.

He was not called on to argue the second point raised by defendant.

The Court decided to hear the defendant's case.

At the close of defendant's case, De Freitas, K.C., having summed up defendant's case and Browne having replied for the plaintiff the Court gave judgment.

RAYNER, C.J.: This is a very simple case, the real questions to be decided being questions of fact rather than of law. It is quite clear that this action is maintainable under Roman-Dutch law. Probably such an action could not be maintained in the English Courts, but on the authorities which have been cited to us, it is clear that an action will lie under Roman-Dutch law when a person has been injured in consequence of the defective state of premises which the owner has neglected to repair. This is clear and settled law and is clearly set out in the authorities referred to, and it is not necessary to refer to them at length again.

The next point which arises is whether damages can be recovered when the injured person dies. In such a case he cannot claim damages himself and the question is whether his children can claim them. I think in such a case the child can recover damages for the loss of a parent. That was clearly laid down in the case of Burke v. The B.G. Goldmining Co., (13 March, 1909). In this case the plaintiff is an illegitimate child, and the mother is clearly the person liable for its maintenance. In strict law she has no father to whom she can look. It is true the mother might have taken bastardy proceedings against the father and got an order made to compel him to contribute towards the child's maintenance, but she did not do so, and beyond the admission of the witness Gunning in the witness-box that he is the father, there is nothing to show who the father is, and there is no order or finding of any Court that he is the father. In these circumstances the mother is the only person to whom the plaintiff could look for maintenance. It is possible that if everyone connected with the child repudiated it, and, the child's aunt who appears as guardian ad litem said she could not maintain it any longer, and the Poor Law Commissioners had to take charge of it and maintain it in the Alms House or Orphan Asylum, the Commissioners might be able to claim under the Maintenance Ordinance, 1903, some contribution towards its support from the person who has admitted he is the father. But as the case stands now the only person the child had to look to for maintenance is her mother. She was a person in humble circumstances and appears to have earned from $4 to $6 a month by keeping a baker's shop or a cake shop. Apparently after the child's birth she had done no work. The child was very young at the time of her mother's death and it is possible that the mother's health was not sufficiently re-established at the time of the fatal accident to enable her to do anything. The doctor said she was a healthy young woman, and there is nothing before us to show that in due course she would not have been able to resume work, and to maintain the child as thousands of women in her class of life do. The mere fact that if the child were left destitute, the father might be compelled to contribute towards its maintenance, is no reason for depriving the child of compensation for the loss of her mother.

The next point to be considered is whether the defendant had notice that the building was defective, because it is clear that if he did not know, and had no means of knowing that the premises were unsafe, he is not liable. Did the defendant know that the kitchen was in a dangerous condition, or was the defect so patent that he must be taken to have known of it? I think on the evidence he did know that the kitchen needed repair. Even if we doubt the evidence of Gunning as to the conversation which he said took place at the Magistrate's Court between himself and the defendant as to the kitchen, there is the evidence of the witness Susan Ward who was present in the house when the defendant's son called for the rent, and she heard the deceased woman tell him that the kitchen wanted repairing, and saw her take him through the door to show it to him. I see no reason to doubt this evidence, and the defendant admitted he employed his son to collect the rent of this house. Apart from that, I think there is some evidence that the defect was a patent one. Mr. Nurse said inspection would have shown the state of the place and Mr. Greenidge admitted that the beams carrying the floor were rotten for about four inches at each end.

I am of opinion therefore that the facts of this case bring it within the law and that the plaintiff is entitled to succeed.

The next question is as to the amount of damages to be awarded. The plaintiff or those who have brought this action on her behalf have claimed $4,000, an amount which is entirely out of the question and is absolutely preposterous. It was suggested to us that the deceased woman might have become prosperous if she had lived, but it is impossible to take into account things which might possibly happen: we can only give judgment on the facts before us. The deceased was a woman in humble circumstances and on the evidence, it does not seem probable that she would be able to afford more than about $2 a month for her child's support. I think the proper way to assess the damages in this case is to take $2 a month as the amount the child might reasonably expect her mother to contribute to her support, and to take that sum for sixteen years, that being the age when a child in the class of life of the plaintiff would naturally and probably begin to earn her living. This gives roughly a sum of $400, which we think is a fair sum at which, taking into consideration all the circumstances of this case, to assess the loss which the plaintiff has sustained by the loss of her mother.

There seems to be a consensus of opinion of the learned counsel on both sides, that whatever sum is awarded it should be secured for the benefit of the child, and we think the best way will be to appoint the Public Trustee to be the guardian of the plaintiff under section 6 of the Public Trustee Ordinance (No. 15 of 1910) and to order that the damages be paid into Court, to be paid over by the Registrar to the Public Trustee, who will deal with it under the law for the benefit of the child.

The only question which now remains is the question of costs. We have little or no discretion upon this point, for section 36 (1) of the Supreme Court Ordinance (No. 7 of 1893) provides that "no costs shall be allowed to a successful plaintiff in any action brought by him in the general jurisdiction of the Court which might have been tried in its Limited Jurisdiction unless the Court is of opinion that the action was one which it was expedient to bring in such manner and certifies accordingly." This action could quite well have been brought in the Limited Jurisdiction of the Court and should have been so brought. There are no circumstances which made it in any way expedient to bring it in the General Jurisdiction, and therefore we are unable to award the plaintiff any costs.

EARNshaw, J.: I concur with the judgment delivered by the Chief Justice and with the reasons therefor and have nothing to add.

HILL, Acting J.: This action is brought by the plaintiff as guardian ad litem of the minor for $4,000, damages for the death of her mother, through the negligence of the defendant.

The facts are that the mother occupied a house, as tenant, which she rented from defendant; the kitchen fell when she was in it, and she sustained injuries which caused her death. Her child is illegitimate.

It was contended at the hearing on a point of law that no action will be under our law. I am satisfied that it will. I cannot distinguish between the facts in this case, and those in Burke v. B. G. Gold Mining Coy. (G. J. 12,300.)

In that case the father of certain children, a servant in the employ of defendant Company, was killed, and the Company were sued by the widow for negligence, and the Full Court held, "we see no reason why a separate action should have been brought by the widow instead of one action being brought on behalf of both the widow and children of the deceased."

The rights therein, and those of the minor herein, are similar, both arising out of facts, in one case, on a contract between Master and Servant, in the other, between Landlord and Tenant.

The law on the point in regard to the liability of a landlord may be summarised in this way:—He is liable for material defects known to him, or of which from the nature of his occupation or profession, or from other circumstances, he ought to have known.

I am satisfied the defendant had notice, both personally, or through his agent, his son, who collected the rent for him. I am also satisfied on his own showing, that he came under the category of one who ought to have known of the defects in view of his evidence that he did nothing but visit his various properties for the purpose of inspection and renewing bad materials with good.

He is therefore liable.

The damages are such as would afford fair compensation for the pecuniary loss suffered by the child in the loss of her mother.

I think $2 to $3 per month for 14 years—the child is now 2 years,—a fair amount, and assess the damages at $400.

This is a case which ought to have been brought in the Limited Jurisdiction of this Court, and I see no good ground for departing from the restriction imposed under section 56 (1), Ordinance 7 of 1893, as to costs, and allow none.

The Public Trustee will be appointed as guardian of the minor, and have the custody of the funds.

Government Notices.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,

577. 16th December, 1913.

HIS Excellency the Governor directs the publication, for general information, of the following extract from a paper by Dr. S. T. Darling, Chief of the Isthmian Canal Laboratory in the Canal Zone, concerning the transmission of Trypanosoma Hippicum, by Musca domestica:—

Recently, I have been very much interested in the question of the transmission of trypanosomiasis of horses by means of the common, unspeakable, or typhoid fly—Musca domestica. We had a visitation of this disease (murrina) among the corral mules and work horses in 1909. As it was chiefly among the mules, naturally the disease was not transmitted during copulation. Ticks did not transmit it, for mules were never infested with ticks, although the saddle horses frequently were. The latter, however, never contracted the disease naturally. Among the biting flies, Stomoxys, and Tabanids could not be incriminated, because Stomoxys were biting mules and saddle horses indiscriminately, yet the saddle horses, though just as susceptible as the mules, never contracted the disease. Tabanids were rarely found at all, excepting in the woods, and it appeared that they were never found in some of the districts where the trypanosomal disease existed. There was no testimony tending to incriminate any other insect than the unspeakable fly.

I found that excoriated patches on the skin of the animals appeared several days before death, and resulted from the animal's leaning against the stall. These sores exuded infected serum, and were constantly visited by flies. It was found too, that the animals which became infected with the disease had, as a rule, been worked on "scrapers," and that they were frequently in the sick corral suffering from cuts and galls. It seemed reasonable that the flies acted as carriers of the disease by transporting the trypanosome from the sores of infected animals to the fresh cuts of clean animals.

I am aware that it was not very dignified, if I may so express it, to attempt to incriminate Musca domestica when most trypanosomal diseases are known to be transmitted by biting flies; or, at least, such flies have been accused of acting as carriers of the virus of several of these diseases. Very laborious efforts are made everywhere to incriminate biting flies, and there can be no doubt of this mode of infection in sleeping sickness and nagana, but there is much evidence that trypanosomiasis may be transmitted in several ways, and I would suggest that more attention be paid to the possibility of infection in some of these diseases by means of Musca domestica.

As there seemed to be no other way for the mules and work horses to become infected, and as this offered a good working hypothesis upon which to base a rational mode of prophylaxis, it was determined to carry out an energetic campaign based on that hypothesis. The following recommendations were made with a view to the detection and isolation of all infected animals: The isolation of all suspects in screened stables; the diagnosis of infected animals in the laboratory, by microscopic examination and animal inoculation; the sacrifice of all infected animals; and the protection of all non-infected animals by suitable dressings for their wounds. At this time about 35 infected animals had been detected, and the precautionary measures were at once carried out.

Opportunity occurred later for the collection of experimental data with a view to determining the mechanism of the infection by flies. First it was ascertained that Musca domestica could transmit or carry the trypanosome in the manner supposed. Three lots of Musca domestica were caught in biting jars and fed with blood from a guinea-pig infected with Tr. hippicum, the pathogenic agent of the disease, and, after an interval of about 30 seconds, the flies were placed over the shaved and scratched skin of three mules, where they remained for about five minutes. One of the three mules became infected in this way.

If the mouth parts of a fly are compressed on to a slide a large amount of clear fluid is exuded. This fluid, I have found, at times contains many individuals of the preflagellate phase of the Herpetomonas of the fly. It seems likely, then, that the salivary (?) secretion of the fly, which is a favourable medium for the growth of a flagellate, would not be inimical to the trypanosome.

This salivary secretion seems to be used for several purposes. Graham-Smith states that when a fly is feeding upon sugar or dry sputum, he first appears to deposit quantities of this saliva from his proboscis, making the dry substance moist, and then sucking up the solution of sugar or suspension of sputum. He further noticed that flies regurgitated clear fluid from their beaks, and that they or other flies frequently sucked up these drops into their beaks again.

In another experiment I determined that when Musca domestica was fed with guinea-pig blood infected with Tr. hippicum, the trypanosomes remained viable microscopically in the mouth parts of the fly for as long as two hours. No observations were made at this time on the extreme length of time they might so live, for as the fly was regarded as a mechanical vector, and not as a true intermediary host, it was conceived that two hours would give more than ample time for the transference of the virus from one animal to another. It was further determined that the trypanosome remained viable for inoculation purposes in the mouth parts of the fly for 23 minutes, by finding that white mice inoculated with a suspension of material from the mouth parts of infected flies became infected when inoculated 23 minutes after the feeding. This period would certainly have been found to be longer if the experiment had been so modified that the sub-inoculation from infected flies had been made into larger mammals, for most of the mice died of septicemia as a result of the contaminating bacteria in the proboscis of the unspeakable flies.

I have been able to confirm a number of Graham-Smith's observations on the habits of flies. It is certainly true that they regurgitate or expel infected material per anum, for I have found drops of blood that had been expelled one and one-half hours after the flies had been fed on infected guinea-pig blood. It would seem, then, that either regurgitation or expulsion of material infected with trypanosomes upon the fresh cuts or sores of clean animals is the mechanism by which infection has arisen.

We can not assume that after feeding flies absent themselves, for they are frequently interrupted in their feeding operations, and, as Graham-Smith has shown, they regurgitate or expel frequently when interrupted.

In any case, the efforts to stamp out the disease among the corral animals by efforts used against the fly and based on the conception of the part they played as carriers of the virus, was eminently successful, for the disease has been stamped out in the corrals and has not reappeared in two years, though it is still rife nearby in the outlying districts of the Republic of Panama.

[31st December, 1913.]

PART I.

1. This Ordinance may be cited as the Sale of Goods Ordinance, Short title. 1913.

2.—(1.) In this Ordinance, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires,— Interpretation of terms.

“Action” includes counterclaim and set off:

“Buyer” means a person who buys or agrees to buy goods:

"Contract of sale" includes an agreement to sell as well as a sale :

"Delivery" means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another :

"Document of title to goods" shall include any Bill of Lading, Dock Warrant, Warehouse Keeper's Certificate, Wharf Warrant and Warrant or order for the Delivery of Goods and any other document used in the ordinary course of business as proof of the possession or control of goods, or authorizing or purporting to authorize, either by endorsement or by delivery, the possession of the document to transfer or receive goods thereby represented.

"Fault" means wrongful act or default :

"Future goods" means goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract of sale :

"Goods" include all movables except money. The term includes growing crops, and things attached to or forming part of the land which are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale :

"Lien" includes the right of retention :

"Property" means the general property in goods, and not merely a special property :

"Quality of goods" includes their state or condition :

"Sale" includes a bargain and sale as well as a sale and delivery :

"Seller" means a person who sells or agrees to sell goods :

"Specific goods" mean goods identified and agreed upon at the time a contract of sale is made :

"Warranty" means an agreement with reference to goods which are the subject of a contract of sale, but collateral to the main purpose of such contract, the breach of which gives rise to a claim for damages, but not to a right to reject the goods and treat the contract as repudiated.

(2.) A thing is deemed to be done "in good faith" within the meaning of this Ordinance when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not.

(3.) A person is deemed to be insolvent within the meaning of this Ordinance who either has ceased to pay his debts in the ordinary course of business, or cannot pay his debts as they become due, whether he has committed an act of insolvency or not.

A.D. 1913.]

SALE OF GOODS.

[No. 26.]

FORMATION OF THE CONTRACT.

Contract of Sale.

3.—(1.) A contract of sale of goods is a contract whereby the seller transfers or agrees to transfer the property in goods to the buyer for a money consideration, called the price. There may be a contract of Sale between one part owner and another.

Sale and
to sell.

(2.) A contract of sale may be absolute or conditional.

(3.) Where under a contract of sale the property in the goods is transferred from the seller to the buyer the contract is called a sale; but where the transfer of the property in the goods is to take place at a future time or subject to some condition thereafter to be fulfilled the contract is called an agreement to sell.

(4.) An agreement to sell becomes a sale when the time elapses or the conditions are fulfilled subject to which the property in the goods is to be transferred.

4. Capacity to buy and sell is regulated by the general law concerning capacity to contract, and to transfer and acquire property.

buy and sell.

Provided that where necessaries are sold and delivered to an infant, or minor, or to a person who by reason of mental incapacity or drunkenness is incompetent to contract, he must pay a reasonable price therefor.

Necessaries in this section mean goods suitable to the condition in life of such infant or minor or other person, and to his actual requirements at the time of the sale and delivery.

Formalities of the Contract

5. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and of any ordinance in that behalf, a contract of sale may be made in writing (either with or without seal), or by word of mouth, or partly in writing and partly by word of mouth, or may be implied from the conduct of the parties.

Contract of

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the law relating to corporations.

6.—(1.) A contract for the sale of any goods of the value of forty-eight dollars or upwards shall not be enforceable by action unless the buyer shall accept part of the goods so sold, and actually receive the same, or give something in earnest to bind the contract, or in part payment, or unless some note or memorandum in writing of the contract be made and signed by the party to be charged or his agent in that behalf.

Contract of
and upwards.

(2.) The provisions of this section apply to every such contract, notwithstanding that the goods may be intended to be delivered at some future time, or may not at the time of such contract be actually made, procured, or provided, or fit or ready for delivery, or some act may be requisite for the making or completing thereof, or rendering the same fit for delivery.

(3.) There is an acceptance of goods within the meaning of this section when the buyer does any act in relation to the goods which recognises a pre-existing contract of sale whether there be an acceptance in performance of the contract or not.

Subject Matter of Contract.

Existing or future goods.

7.—(1.) The goods which form the subject of a contract of sale may be either existing goods, owned or possessed by the seller, or goods to be manufactured or acquired by the seller after the making of the contract of sale, in this Ordinance called "future goods."

(2.) There may be a contract for the sale of goods, the acquisition of which by the seller depends upon a contingency which may or may not happen.

(3.) Where by a contract of sale the seller purports to effect a present sale of future goods the contract operates as an agreement to sell the goods.

Goods which have perished.

8. Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods, and the goods without the knowledge of the seller have perished at the time when the contract is made, the contract is void.

Goods per-
to sell.

9. Where there is an agreement to sell specific goods, and subsequently the goods, without any fault on the part of the seller or buyer, perish before the risk passes to the buyer, the agreement is thereby avoided.

The Price.

Ascertain-

10.—(1.) The price in a contract of sale may be fixed by the contract, or may be left to be fixed in manner thereby agreed, or may be determined by the course of dealing between the parties.

(2.) Where the price is not determined in accordance with the foregoing provisions the buyer must pay a reasonable price. What is a reasonable price is a question of fact dependent on the circumstances of each particular case.

Agreement
valuation.

11.—(1.) Where there is an agreement to sell goods on the terms that the price is to be fixed by the valuation of a third party, and such third party cannot or does not make such valuation, the agreement is avoided; provided that if the goods or any part thereof have been delivered to and appropriated by the buyer he must pay a reasonable price therefor.

A.D. 1913.]

SALE OF GOODS.

[No. 26.]

(2.) Where such third party is prevented from making the valuation by the fault of the seller or buyer, the party not in fault may maintain an action for damages against the party in fault.

Conditions and Warranties.

12.—(1.) Unless a different intention appears from the terms of the contract, stipulations as to time of payment are not deemed to be of the essence of a contract of sale. Whether any other stipulation as to time is of the essence of the contract or not depends on the terms of the contract. Stipulations as to time.

(2.) In a contract of sale “month” means prima facie calendar month.

13.—(1.) Where a contract of sale is subject to any condition to be fulfilled by the seller, the buyer may waive the condition, or may elect to treat the breach of such condition as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for treating the contract as repudiated. When condition to be treated as warranty.

(2.) Whether a stipulation in a contract of sale is a condition, the breach of which may give rise to a right to treat the contract as repudiated, or a warranty, the breach of which may give rise to a claim for damages but not to a right to reject the goods and treat the contract as repudiated, depends in each case on the construction of the contract. A stipulation may be a condition, though called a warranty in the contract.

(3.) Where a contract of sale is not severable, and the buyer has accepted the goods, or part thereof, or where the contract is for specific goods, the property in which has passed to the buyer, the breach of any condition to be fulfilled by the seller can only be treated as a breach of warranty, and not as a ground for rejecting the goods and treating the contract as repudiated, unless there be a term of the contract, express or implied, to that effect.

(4.) Nothing in this section shall affect the case of any condition or warranty, fulfilment of which is excused by law by reason of impossibility or otherwise.

14. In a contract of sale, unless the circumstances of the contract are such as to show a different intention, there is— Implied undertaking as to title, &c.

- (1.) An implied condition on the part of the seller that in the case of a sale he has a right to sell the goods, and that in the case of an agreement to sell he will have a right to sell the goods at the time when the property is to pass :
- (2.) An implied warranty that the buyer shall have and enjoy quiet possession of the goods :
- (3.) An implied warranty that the goods shall be free from any charge or encumbrance in favour of any third party, not declared or known to the buyer before or at the time when the contract is made.

Sale by description.

15. Where there is a contract for the sale of goods by description, there is an implied condition that the goods shall correspond with the description; and if the sale be by sample, as well as by description, it is not sufficient that the bulk of the goods corresponds with the sample if the goods do not also correspond with the description.

Implied condition as to quality or fitness.

16. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and of any Ordinance in that behalf, there is no implied warranty or condition as to the quality or fitness for any particular purpose of goods supplied under a contract of sale, except as follows :—

- (1.) Where the buyer, expressly or by implication, makes known to the seller the particular purpose for which the goods are required, so as to show that the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment, and the goods are of a description which it is in the course of the seller's business to supply (whether he be the manufacturer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be reasonably fit for such purpose, provided that in the case of a contract for the sale of a specified article under its patent or other trade name, there is no implied condition as to its fitness for any particular purpose :
- (2.) Where goods are bought by description, from a seller who deals in goods of that description (whether he be the manufacturer or not), there is an implied condition that the goods shall be of merchantable quality; provided that if the buyer has examined the goods, there shall be no implied condition as regards defects which such examination ought to have revealed :
- (3.) An implied warranty or condition as to quality or fitness for a particular purpose may be annexed by the usage of trade.
- (4.) An express warranty or condition does not negative a warranty or condition implied by this Ordinance unless inconsistent therewith.

Sale by Sample.

Sale by sample.

17.—(1.) A contract of sale is a contract for sale by sample where there is a term in the contract, express or implied, to that effect.

(2.) In the case of a contract for sale by sample—

- (a.) There is an implied condition that the bulk shall correspond with the sample in quality :
- (b.) There is an implied condition that the buyer shall have a reasonable opportunity of comparing the bulk with the sample :

A.D. 1913.]

SALE OF GOODS.

[No. 26.]

- (c.) There is an implied condition that the goods shall be free from any defect, rendering them merchantable, which would not be apparent on reasonable examination of the sample.

PART II.

EFFECTS OF THE CONTRACT.

Transfer of Property as between Seller and Buyer.

18. Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained goods no property in the goods is transferred to the buyer unless and until the goods are ascertained. Goods must be ascertained.

19. —(1.) Where there is a contract for the sale of specific or ascertained goods the property in them is transferred to the buyer at such time as the parties to the contract intend it to be transferred. Property passes when intended to pass.

(2.) For the purpose of ascertaining the intention of the parties regard shall be had to the terms of the contract, the conduct of the parties, and the circumstances of the case.

20. Unless a different intention appears, the following are rules for ascertaining the intention of the parties as to the time at which the property in the goods is to pass to the buyer. Rules for ascertaining intention.

Rule 1.—Where there is an unconditional contract for the sale of specific goods, in a deliverable state, the property in the goods passes to the buyer when the contract is made, and it is immaterial whether the time of payment or the time of delivery, or both, be postponed.

Rule 2.—Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods and the seller is bound to do something to the goods, for the purpose of putting them into a deliverable state, the property does not pass until such thing be done, and the buyer has notice thereof.

Rule 3.—Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods in a deliverable state, but the seller is bound to weigh, measure, test, or do some other act or thing with reference to the goods for the purpose of ascertaining the price, the property does not pass until such act or thing be done, and the buyer has notice thereof.

Rule 4.—When goods are delivered to the buyer on approval or “on sale or return” or other similar terms the property therein passes to the buyer :—

- (a.) When he signifies his approval or acceptance to the seller or does any other act adopting the transaction :

tion, then, if a time has been fixed for the return of the goods, on the expiration of such time, and, if no time has been fixed, on the expiration of a reasonable time. What is a reasonable time is a question of fact.

Rule 5.—(1.) Where there is a contract for the sale of unascertained or future goods by description, and goods of that description and in a deliverable state are unconditionally appropriated to the contract, either by the seller with the assent of the buyer, or by the buyer with the assent of the seller, the property in the goods thereupon passes to the buyer. Such assent may be expressed or implied and may be given either before or after the appropriation is made :

(2.) Where, in pursuance of the contract, the seller delivers the goods to the buyer or to a carrier or other bailee (whether named by the buyer or not) for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, and does not reserve the right of disposal, he is deemed to have unconditionally appropriated the goods to the contract.

Reservation
disposal.

21.—(1.) Where there is a contract for the sale of specific goods or where goods are subsequently appropriated to the contract, the seller may, by the terms of the contract or appropriation, reserve the right of disposal of the goods until certain conditions are fulfilled. In such case, notwithstanding the delivery of the goods to the buyer, or to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer the property in the goods does not pass to the buyer until the conditions imposed by the seller are fulfilled.

(2.) Where goods are shipped, and by the bill of lading the goods are deliverable to the order of the seller or his agent, the seller is prima facie deemed to reserve the right of disposal.

(3.) Where the seller of goods draws on the buyer for the price, and transmits the bill of exchange and bill of lading to the buyer together to secure acceptance or payment of the bill of exchange, the buyer is bound to return the bill of lading if he does not honour the bill of exchange, and if he wrongfully retains the bill of lading the property in the goods does not pass to him.

Risk prima facie passes with property.

22. Unless otherwise agreed, the goods remain at the seller's risk until the property therein is transferred to the buyer, but when the property therein is transferred to the buyer, the goods are at the buyer's risk whether delivery has been made or not.

Provided that where delivery has been delayed through the fault of either buyer or seller the goods are at the risk of the party in fault as regards any loss which might not have occurred but for such fault.

A.D. 1913.]

SALE OF GOODS.

[No 26.]

Provided also that nothing in this section shall affect the duties or liabilities of either seller or buyer as a bailee of the goods of the other party.

Transfer of Title.

23.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, where goods are sold by a person who is not the owner thereof, and who does not sell them under the authority or with the consent of the owner, the buyer acquires no better title to the goods than the seller had, unless the owner of the goods is by his conduct precluded from denying the seller's authority to sell.

Sale by person not the owner.

(2.) Provided also that nothing in this Ordinance shall affect—

(a.) The provisions of the Law of Merchant Shipping Ordinance, 1864, or any enactment, enabling the apparent owner of goods to dispose of them as if he were the true owner thereof;

(b.) The validity of any contract of sale under any special common law or statutory power of sale or under the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

24. Where goods are sold in any public market held under the authority of the Government or otherwise in accordance with the law according to the usage of the market, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith and without notice of any defect or want of title on the part of the seller.

Goods sold in Public Market.

25. When the seller of goods has a voidable title thereto, but his title has not been avoided at the time of the sale, the buyer acquires a good title to the goods, provided he buys them in good faith and without notice of the seller's defect of title.

Sale under voidable title.

26.—(1) Where goods have been stolen and the offender is prosecuted to conviction, the property in the goods so stolen revests in the person who was the owner of the goods or his personal representative, notwithstanding any intermediate dealing with them, whether by sale in public market or otherwise.

Revesting of property in stolen goods on conviction of offender.

(2.) Notwithstanding any enactment to the contrary, where goods have been obtained by fraud or other wrongful means not amounting to larceny, the property in such goods shall not revests in the person who was the owner of the goods, or his personal representative, by reason only of the conviction of the offender.

27.—(1.) Where a person having sold goods continues or is in possession of the goods, or of the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of the previous sale, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were expressly authorised by the owner of the goods to make the same.

(2.) Where a person having bought or agreed to buy goods obtains, with the consent of the seller, possession of the goods or the documents of title to the goods, the delivery or transfer by that person, or by a mercantile agent acting for him, of the goods or documents of title, under any sale, pledge, or other disposition thereof, to any person receiving the same in good faith and without notice of any lien or other right of the original seller in respect of the goods, shall have the same effect as if the person making the delivery or transfer were a mercantile agent in possession of the goods or documents of title with the consent of the owner.

(3.) In this section the term "mercantile agent" shall mean a mercantile agent having in the customary course of his business as such agent authority either to sell goods or to consign goods for the purpose of sale or to buy goods or to raise money on the security of goods.

Effect of

28. A writ of execution against goods shall bind the property in the goods of the execution debtor as from the time when the writ is delivered to the marshal or bailiff to be executed; and, for the better manifestation of such time, it shall be the duty of the marshal or bailiff without fee, upon the receipt of any such writ to endorse upon the back thereof the hour, day, month, and year when he received the same.

Provided that no such writ shall prejudice the title to such goods acquired by any person in good faith and for valuable consideration, unless such person had at the time when he acquired his title notice that such writ or any other writ by virtue of which the goods of the execution debtor might be seized or attached had been delivered to and remained unexecuted in the hands of the marshal or bailiff.

PART III.

PERFORMANCE OF THE CONTRACT.

Duties of seller and buyer.

29. It is the duty of the seller to deliver the goods, and of the buyer to accept and pay for them, in accordance with the terms of the contract of sale.

Payment and delivery are concur-
tions.

30. Unless otherwise agreed, delivery of the goods and payment of the price are concurrent conditions, that is to say, the seller must be ready and willing to give possession of the goods to the buyer in exchange for the price, and the buyer must be ready and willing to pay the price in exchange for possession of the goods.

A.D. 1913.]

SALE OF GOODS.

[No. 26.]

31.—(1.) Whether it is for the buyer to take possession of the goods or for the seller to send them to the buyer is a question depending in each case on the contract, express or implied, between the parties. Apart from any such contract, express or implied, the place of delivery is the seller's place of business, if he have one, and if not, his residence: Provided that, if the contract be for the sale of specific goods, which to the knowledge of the parties, when the contract is made are in some other place, then that place is the place of delivery.

Rules as to delivery.

(2.) Where under the contract or sale the seller is bound to send the goods to the buyer, but no time for sending them is fixed, the seller is bound to send them within a reasonable time.

(3.) Where the goods at the time of sale are in the possession of a third person, there is no delivery by seller to buyer unless and until such third person acknowledges to the buyer that he holds the goods on his behalf; provided that nothing in this section shall affect the operation of the issue or transfer of any document of title to goods.

(4.) Demand or tender of delivery may be treated as ineffectual unless made at a reasonable hour. What is a reasonable hour is a question of fact.

(5.) Unless otherwise agreed, the expenses of and incidental to putting the goods into a deliverable state must be borne by the seller.

32.—(1.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods less than he contracted to sell, the buyer may reject them, but if the buyer accepts the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate.

Delivery of wrong quantity.

(2.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer a quantity of goods larger than he contracted to sell, the buyer may accept the goods included in the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole. If the buyer accepts the whole of the goods so delivered he must pay for them at the contract rate.

(3.) Where the seller delivers to the buyer the goods he contracted to sell mixed with goods of different description not included in the contract, the buyer may accept the goods which are in accordance with the contract and reject the rest, or he may reject the whole.

(4.) The provisions of this section are subject to any usage of trade, special agreement, or course of dealing between the parties.

33.—(1.) Unless otherwise agreed, the buyer of goods is not bound to accept delivery thereof by instalments

Instalment deliveries.

(2.) Where there is a contract for the sale of goods to be delivered by stated instalments, which are to be separately paid for, and the seller makes defective deliveries in respect of one or more instalments, or the buyer neglects or refuses to take delivery of or pay for one or more instalments, it is a question in each case depending on the terms of the contract and the circumstances of the case, whether the breach of contract is a repudiation of the whole contract or whether it is a severable breach giving rise to a claim for compensation but not to a right to treat the whole contract as repudiated

34.—(1.) Where, in pursuance of a contract of sale, the seller is authorized or required to send the goods to the buyer, delivery of the goods to a carrier, whether named by the buyer or not, for the purpose of transmission to the buyer is prima facie deemed to be a delivery of the goods to the buyer.

(2.) Unless otherwise authorized by the buyer, the seller must make such contract with the carrier on behalf of the buyer as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and the other circumstances of the case. If the seller omit so to do, and the goods are lost or damaged in course of transit, the buyer may decline to treat the delivery to the carrier as a delivery to himself, or may hold the seller responsible in damages.

(3.) Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are sent by the seller to the buyer by a route involving sea transit, under circumstances in which it is usual to insure, the seller must give such notice to the buyer as may enable him to insure them during their sea transit, and, if the seller fails to do so, the goods shall be deemed to be at his risk during such sea transit.

Risk where
distant place.

35. Where the seller of goods agrees to deliver them at his own risk at a place other than that where they are when sold, the buyer must, nevertheless, unless otherwise agreed, take any risk of deterioration in the goods necessarily incident to the course of transit.

Buyer's right
the goods.

36.—(1.) Where goods are delivered to the buyer, which he has not previously examined, he is not deemed to have accepted them unless and until he has had a reasonable opportunity of examining them for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

(2.) Unless otherwise agreed, when the seller tenders delivery of goods to the buyer, he is bound, on request, to afford the buyer a reasonable opportunity of examining the goods for the purpose of ascertaining whether they are in conformity with the contract.

Acceptance.

37. The buyer is deemed to have accepted the goods when he intimates to the seller that he has accepted them, or when the goods have been delivered to him, and he does any act in relation to them which is inconsistent with the ownership of the seller, or when after the lapse of a reasonable time, he retains the goods without intimating to the seller that he has rejected them.

A.D. 1913.]

SALE OF GOODS

[No. 26.]

38. Unless otherwise agreed, where goods are delivered to the buyer, and he refuses to accept them, having the right so to do, he is not bound to return them to the seller, but it is sufficient if he intimates to the seller that he refuses to accept them.

Buyer not bound to return rejected goods.

39. When the seller is ready and willing to deliver the goods, and requests the buyer to take delivery, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time after such request take delivery of the goods, he is liable to the seller for any loss occasioned by his neglect or refusal to take delivery, and also for a reasonable charge for the care and custody of the goods. Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the seller where the neglect or refusal of the buyer to take delivery amounts to a repudiation of the contract.

Liability of buyer for neglecting or refusing delivery of goods.

PART IV.

RIGHTS OF UNPAID SELLER AGAINST THE GOODS.

40.—(1.) The seller of goods is deemed to be an “unpaid seller” within the meaning of this Ordinance—

Unpaid seller defined.

- (a.) When the whole of the price has not been paid or tendered ;
- (b.) When a bill of exchange or other negotiable instrument has been received as conditional payment, and the condition on which it was received has not been fulfilled by reason of the dishonour of the instrument or otherwise.

(2.) In this part of this Ordinance the term “seller” includes any person who is in the position of a seller, as, for instance, an agent of the seller to whom the bill of lading has been indorsed, or a consignor or agent who has himself paid, or is directly responsible for the price.

41.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, and of any Ordinance in that behalf, notwithstanding that the property in the goods may have passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller of goods, as such, has by implication of law—

Unpaid seller's rights.

- (a.) A lien on the goods or right to retain them for the price while he is in possession of them ;
- (b.) In case of the insolvency of the buyer, a right of stopping the goods in transitu after he has parted with the possession of them ;
- (c.) A right of re-sale as limited by this Ordinance.

(2.) Where the property in goods has not passed to the buyer, the unpaid seller has, in addition to his other remedies, a right of withholding delivery similar to and co-extensive with his rights of lien and stoppage in transitu where the property has passed to the buyer.

Unpaid Seller's Lien

Seller's lien 42.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the unpaid seller of goods who is in possession of them is entitled to retain possession of them until payment or tender of the price in the following cases, namely :—

- (a.) Where the goods have been sold without any stipulation as to credit ;
- (b.) Where the goods have been sold on credit, but the term of credit has expired ;
- (c.) Where the buyer becomes insolvent.

(2.) The seller may exercise his right of lien notwithstanding that he is in possession of the goods as agent or bailee for the buyer.

Part delivery. 43. Where an unpaid seller has made part delivery of the goods, he may exercise his right of lien or retention on the remainder, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement to waive the lien or right of retention.

Termination of lien. 44.—(1.) The unpaid seller of goods loses his lien or right of retention thereon—

- (a.) When he delivers the goods to a carrier or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer without reserving the right of disposal of the goods ;
- (b.) When the buyer or his agent lawfully obtains possession of the goods ;
- (c.) By waiver thereof.

(2.) The unpaid seller of goods, having a lien or right of retention thereon, does not lose his lien or right of retention by reason only that he has obtained judgment or decree for the price of the goods.

Stoppage in transitu.

Right of stoppage in transitu. 45. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, when the buyer of goods becomes insolvent, the unpaid seller who has parted with the possession of the goods has the right of stopping them in transitu that is to say, he may resume possession of the goods as long as they are in course of transit, and may retain them until payment or tender of the price.

Duration of transit. 46.—(1.) Goods are deemed to be in course of transit from the time when they are delivered to a carrier by land or water, or other bailee for the purpose of transmission to the buyer, until the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, takes delivery of them from such carrier or other bailee.

(2.) If the buyer or his agent in that behalf obtains delivery of the goods before their arrival at the appointed destination, the transit is at an end.

A.D. 1913.]

SALE OF GOODS.

[No. 26.]

(3.) If, after the arrival of the goods at the appointed destination, the carrier or other bailee acknowledges to the buyer, or his agent, that he holds the goods on his behalf and continues in possession of them as bailee for the buyer, or his agent, the transit is at an end, and it is immaterial that a further destination for the goods may have been indicated by the buyer.

(4.) If the goods are rejected by the buyer, and the carrier or other bailee continues in possession of them, the transit is not deemed to be at an end, even if the seller has refused to receive them back.

(5.) When goods are delivered to a ship chartered by the buyer it is a question depending on the circumstances of the particular case, whether they are in the possession of the master as a carrier, or as agent to the buyer.

(6.) Where the carrier or other bailee wrongfully refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the transit is deemed to be at an end.

(7.) Where part delivery of the goods has been made to the buyer, or his agent in that behalf, the remainder of the goods may be stopped in transitu, unless such part delivery has been made under such circumstances as to show an agreement to give up possession of the whole of the goods.

47.—(1.) The unpaid seller may exercise his right of stoppage in transitu either by taking actual possession of the goods, or by giving notice of his claim to the carrier or other bailee in whose possession the goods are. Such notice may be given either to the person in actual possession of the goods or to his principal. In the latter case the notice, to be effectual, must be given at such time and under such circumstances that the principal, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, may communicate it to his servant or agent in time to prevent a delivery to the buyer.

How stoppage in transitu is effected.

(2.) When notice of stoppage in transitu is given by the seller to the carrier, or other bailee in possession of the goods, he must re-deliver the goods to, or according to the directions of, the seller. The expenses of such re-delivery must be borne by the seller.

Re-sale by Buyer or Seller

48. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu is not affected by any sale, or other disposition of the goods which the buyer may have made, unless the seller has assented thereto.

Effect of sub-sale or pledge by buyer.

Provided that where a document of title to goods has been lawfully transferred to any person as buyer or owner of the goods, and that person transfers the document to a person who takes the document in good faith and for valuable consideration, then, if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of sale the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu is defeated, and if such last-mentioned transfer was by way of pledge or other disposition for value, the unpaid seller's right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu can only be exercised subject to the rights of the transferee.

Sale not generally rescinded by lien or stoppage in transitu.

49.—(1.) Subject to the provisions of this section, a contract of sale is not rescinded by the mere exercise by an unpaid seller of his right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu.

(2.) Where an unpaid seller who has exercised his right of lien or retention or stoppage in transitu re-sells the goods, the buyer acquires a good title thereto as against the original buyer.

(3.) Where the goods are of a perishable nature, or where the unpaid seller gives notice to the buyer of his intention to resell, and the buyer does not within a reasonable time pay or tender the price, the unpaid seller may re-sell the goods and recover from the original buyer damages for any loss occasioned by his breach of contract.

(4.) Where the seller expressly reserves a right of re-sale in case the buyer should make default, and on the buyer making default, re-sells the goods, the original contract of sale is thereby rescinded, but without prejudice to any claim the seller may have for damages.

PART V.

ACTIONS FOR BREACH OF THE CONTRACT.

Remedies of the Seller.

Action for price.

50.—(1.) Where, under a contract of sale, the property in the goods has passed to the buyer, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay for the goods according to the terms of the contract, the seller may maintain an action against him for the price of the goods.

(2.) Where, under a contract of sale, the price is payable on a day certain irrespective of delivery, and the buyer wrongfully neglects or refuses to pay such price, the seller may maintain an action for the price, although the property in the goods has not passed, and the goods have not been appropriated to the contract.

Damages for non-acceptance.

A.D. 1913.]

SALE OF GOODS.

[No. 26.]

(2.) The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the buyer's breach of contract.

(3.) Where there is an available market for the goods in question the measure of damages is prima facie to be ascertained by the difference between the contract price and the market or current price at the time or times when the goods ought to have been accepted, or, if no time was fixed for acceptance, then at the time of the refusal to accept.

Remedies of the Buyer.

52.—(1.) Where the seller wrongfully neglects or refuses to deliver the goods to the buyer, the buyer may maintain an action against the seller for damages for non-delivery. Damages for non-delivery.

(2.) The measure of damages is the estimated loss directly and naturally resulting, in the ordinary course of events, from the seller's breach of contract.

(3.) Where there is an available market for the goods in question the measure of damages is prima facie to be ascertained by the difference between the contract price and the market or current price of the goods at the time or times when they ought to have been delivered, or, if no time was fixed, then at the time of the refusal to deliver.

53. In any action for breach of contract to deliver specific or ascertained goods the court may, if it thinks fit on the application of the plaintiff, by its judgment or decree direct that the contract shall be performed specifically, without giving the defendant the option of retaining the goods on payment of damages. The judgment or decree may be unconditional, or upon such terms and conditions as to damages, payment of the price, and otherwise, as to the court may seem just, and the application by the plaintiff may be made at any time before judgment or decree. APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 16TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1913.

CARTER. versus WINTER.

(Time within which complaint for summary conviction offence must be made.—Ordinance 12 of 1893, section 7, applied to offence under Ordinance 26 of 1909 section 7(2).)

The following judgment was delivered:—

EARNHAW, J.: The appellant was convicted in the Court below on the charge that on the 6th day of June, 1913, at Georgetown, he did wilfully fail to pay fourteen days after the same became due wages due to one Battu, an East Indian labourer who had been duly registered to serve the appellant. The complaint was made under section 7 (2) of Ordinance 26 of 1909 which reads as follows:—“Every employer shall pay all wages due to labourers employed by him immediately the same become due, and any such employer failing to pay such wages within fourteen days of the same becoming due, shall, on conviction thereof, be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars.”

There are numerous reasons alleged for appeal, but only one reason has any merit. That is reason (1) (b), viz.:—“That the decision is erroneous in point of law because the complaint against the defendant was not made within six months from the time when the matter of such complaint arose, that is to say, within six months from the fifth of March, 1913.”

The evidence shows that the matter of the complaint arose on the nineteenth day of March, 1913, and to that extent there is an error in the statement of the reason for appeal.

That error does not however make the reason bad, as there was no necessity to include therein the words which follow after the words “complaint arose.”

The statement of the reason is complete at that stage and the words which follow may be regarded as surplusage.

They certainly do not affect the alleged reason as a reason in law, and they do not prejudice the respondent in any way.

Section 7 of Ordinance 12 of 1893 provides that “in every case where no time is specially limited for making a complaint for a summary conviction offence in the statute relating to such offence, such complaint shall be made within six months from the time when the matter of such complaint arose, and not after."

That section applies to this offence which was complete on the 19th March, 1913.

The complaint for the same was not made until the 22nd October, 1913, i.e., one month and three days after the time limited for making such complaint.

The conviction must therefore be quashed and the appeal allowed.

I was asked by Counsel for respondent to disallow costs in the event of the appellant being successful, but though I have no sympathy whatever with the appellant on the facts of the case, I do not see sufficient reason for depriving him of costs.

The respondent was guilty of laches in making the complaint and he must pay.

The appeal is therefore allowed with costs for the appellant both here and in the Court below.

HALY.

Cattle—Wilfully killing with intent to steal carcase—Proof.

HILL, J., (Acting): The real question involved in this appeal from the decision of a Magistrate is whether there was sufficient evidence before him which he could properly submit to himself sitting as a jury.

I think there was, and that the decision must be affirmed, and the appeal dismissed with costs.

versus

THOMAS TROTMAN in his capacity as Secretary of The Boerasirrie Commissioners.

(Case referred back to Magistrate to be re-heard.—Court acts of its own motion on seeing defects in the record.)

The following order was delivered:—

EARNSHAW, J.: In this case the record of the proceedings in the Court below shows that the charge was not properly proved. I think this Court can of its own motion, if it thinks fit, take notice of such defect and under Ordinance 13 of 1893, section 31, (1) (b) refer the case back to the Magistrate to be re-heard. I therefore refer the case back to the Magistrate to be re-heard and determined by him.

I am not satisfied that the appellant properly assisted the Magistrate when the case was before him and under all the circumstances of the case I allow no costs.

GENERAL JURISDICTION.

WENTFORD

versus

SERRAO.

*Crown Lands Regulations, 1910.—Transfers of Licences under Regulations, 1910.
—"Right, title or interest" in a Balata Licence.*

The defendant obtained two balata licences under the Crown Lands Regulations, and the plaintiff alleged that he had a half share with the defendant in them. The plaintiff's right, title and interest in the licences was levied on and sold at execution sale to one Vieira, a partner of the defendant. The defendant then sold the licences to Vieira and the plaintiff opposed the transfer of the licences to Vieira under Regulation 10 as being a person having a "right, title or interest" in the licences, and brought this action.

P. N. Browne for Plaintiff.

Hutson, K.C., for Defendant.

RAYNER, C.J.: I have had the opportunity of reading the judgment about to be delivered by Earnshaw, J., and I concur in it. The only point on which I wish to add anything is as to the nature of the opposition which may be made under the Crown Lands Regulations to the transfer of a licence or permission. It is quite clear that a licence to collect balata under Part VII. of the Regulations is personal to the holder, that is, to the person named in it as the licensee, and no other person has "any right, title or interest" in it.

In this case the licences were issued to the defendant alone. The plaintiff alleges that he had a half share in them with the defendant, but on the evidence it is clear that at most he was a partner with the defendant in the venture for obtaining balata from the land comprised in the licences. He had himself no interest in the licences. He has, however, opposed the transfer of them by the defendant to a third person under Regulation 12, which gives power to anyone to oppose a transfer who has "any right, title or interest in the licence." But in my opinion those words only relate to a person named in the licence as licensee, as for example, if the licence is granted to two persons jointly. In such a case if one of them sought to transfer the licence, the other licensee, being a person who had a "right, title or interest" in it could oppose.

In my opinion the execution issued out of the Magistrate's Court and levied on the plaintiff's "right, title or interest" in these licences had no effect, and conferred nothing on the purchaser. The plaintiff, therefore under Regulation 12 has no power to oppose the transfer for he has no "right, title or interest in the licences" and is not a creditor of the defendant for a liquidated sum, which also under the Regulation is a ground for opposing. Whatever claim he may have against the defendant for his share of the joint venture is uncertain and gives no right to oppose the transfer.

Even if this action were treated as one in which the plaintiff claims from the defendant his share of their venture, no evidence has been given to show that any profits have resulted. The evidence is that the licences are worth very little, and after deducting what the defendant has paid in respect of them the plaintiff's share would be little or nothing.

There must be judgment for the defendant with costs.

EARNSHAW, J.: In this case the plaintiff asks (1) that the defendant be restrained from transferring two licences (a) No. A 1,435, to collect balata on all islands lying and being between the right and left banks of the Mazaruni River from Makari Falls to Morabisei Creek, (b) No. A 1,436 to collect balata on all islands lying and being between the right and left banks of the Mazaruni River from Caria Islands to Makari Falls, and (2) that the defendant be condemned to pay him the sum of $3,500 as damages by reason of acts of fraud and collusion, or such other relief as the Court may grant.

On the evidence I find no fraud or collusion on the part of the defendant in this case, nor do I see that the Court can on the facts and the pleadings grant any other relief to the defendant than what is specifically asked for.

The only question therefore for consideration is whether the plaintiff has shown that the defendant ought to be restrained from transferring the aforesaid licences.

The grounds on which such transfer can be opposed are set forth in Regulation 12 of the Crown Lands Regulations 1910, which reads as follows:—"Any person may oppose any transfer on the ground that he has any right, title or interest in the licence or permission or that he is a creditor for a liquidated sum of the person applying for such transfer to be made."

I am not aware that the plaintiff can allege any other grounds.

The plaintiff does not oppose on the ground that he is a creditor of the defendant for a liquidated sum. He can therefore only be opposing on the ground that he has a right, title or interest in the licences sought to be transferred.

On the evidence I find that plaintiff and defendant were and are partners in what may be termed a balata-collecting venture, and that the licences connected therewith are in the name of, and were granted to the defendant alone.

The fact that plaintiff is a partner in the balata-collecting venture does not in my opinion give to him any right, title or interest in the licences.

He may have a right to call on the defendant as his partner to account and pay whatever may be found due in the partnership business, and if the defendant transfer the licences in breach of any term of the partnership agreement, he may have also a claim for damages for breach of contract; but the licences were granted by the Government to the defendant personally, and he alone can act or authorise others to act under them. The plaintiff has no right to interfere with the licences or the collecting of balata thereunder and if the defendant complies with the Regulations for the transfer of licences, he the defendant can transfer them without the plaintiff's consent.

The above is sufficient to conclude this case, but I am of opinion that even if the plaintiff had any right, title or interest in the licences, such right, title or interest has been transferred by a sale at execution of the same to one J. De Abreu, before this action was brought.

There should be judgment for the defendant with costs.

HILL, J. (Actg.): Although the circumstances attendant on the Execution Sale are suspicious, fraud or collusion has not been proved.

The levy on Wentford's undivided right, title and interest in the licences was of no avail as against Serrao's title. It gave nothing more to the purchaser at execution than was capable of being sold.

The legal title remained, and remains, in Serrao, and Wentford has no right in law to oppose the transfer. This Court will not require the Commissioner to recognise any equitable right—whatever may have been Wentford's—or such right as D'Abreu may have acquired at the execution sale, which would seem to have been possibly Wentford's right to work the claims and no more.

Wentford may have a remedy in damages, or for accounts, in some other action.
